

School Salaries the Crux

Rhinebeck Disputes Continue

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK
No end is yet in sight for two contract disputes at Rhinebeck Central School between the teachers association, the principals association, and the Board of Education.

Salaries dominate both of the declared impasses. E. Martin Eiters, Public Employees Board fact-finder in the principals dispute, noted in his report that "While Rhinebeck teachers are the highest paid in comparable council schools, both principals, comparatively, are among the lowest paid in these schools."

3rd Highest in Valley

District Principal Ralph Steeves said Wednesday that the median salary for Rhinebeck teachers is the third highest in the Mid-Hudson Valley. "Granted, the beginning salary is among those on the lower end of the scale, but many of the teachers are working at the top end of the scale." He agreed with a statement that "it can't be too onerous working at Rhinebeck if so many teachers stay so long."

Eiters' report on principals salaries brought a sharp letter of protest from Neal Silvernail, president of the RTA. Silvernail said, "This remark about Rhinebeck Teachers salaries cannot go unanswered."

"We are proud of the fact that Rhinebeck has a staff of well qualified and experienced teachers. At the present time 29 of Rhinebeck's 71 teachers are at the top of the salary schedule or above. This makes the median salary of the Rhinebeck faculty the second highest in the county."

"Such statistics do not mean that Rhinebeck salaries are the best in the county. The RTA has computed the salary of the median teacher of Rhinebeck using the 1968-69 Mid-Hudson Salary Study and compared this with what he would have earned in 1968-69 in the other districts of the county," he said.

"We found that the Rhinebeck's median teacher would have earned more money this year by teaching in any one of 9 of the other 12 school districts in the county. As a matter of fact, in four of the other 12 districts this median teacher would have earned a salary $1,000 or more than he earned in Rhinebeck for the school year 1968-69."

Silvernail explained that the discrepancy lies in the fact that "this is mainly attributable to the experience level and education of the Rhinebeck teachers, and that the salary schedule of the faculty is low when compared to other districts."

He continued, "The RTA also feels that the teachers of Rhinebeck should not be penalized because they have a high percentage of well qualified and experienced teachers."

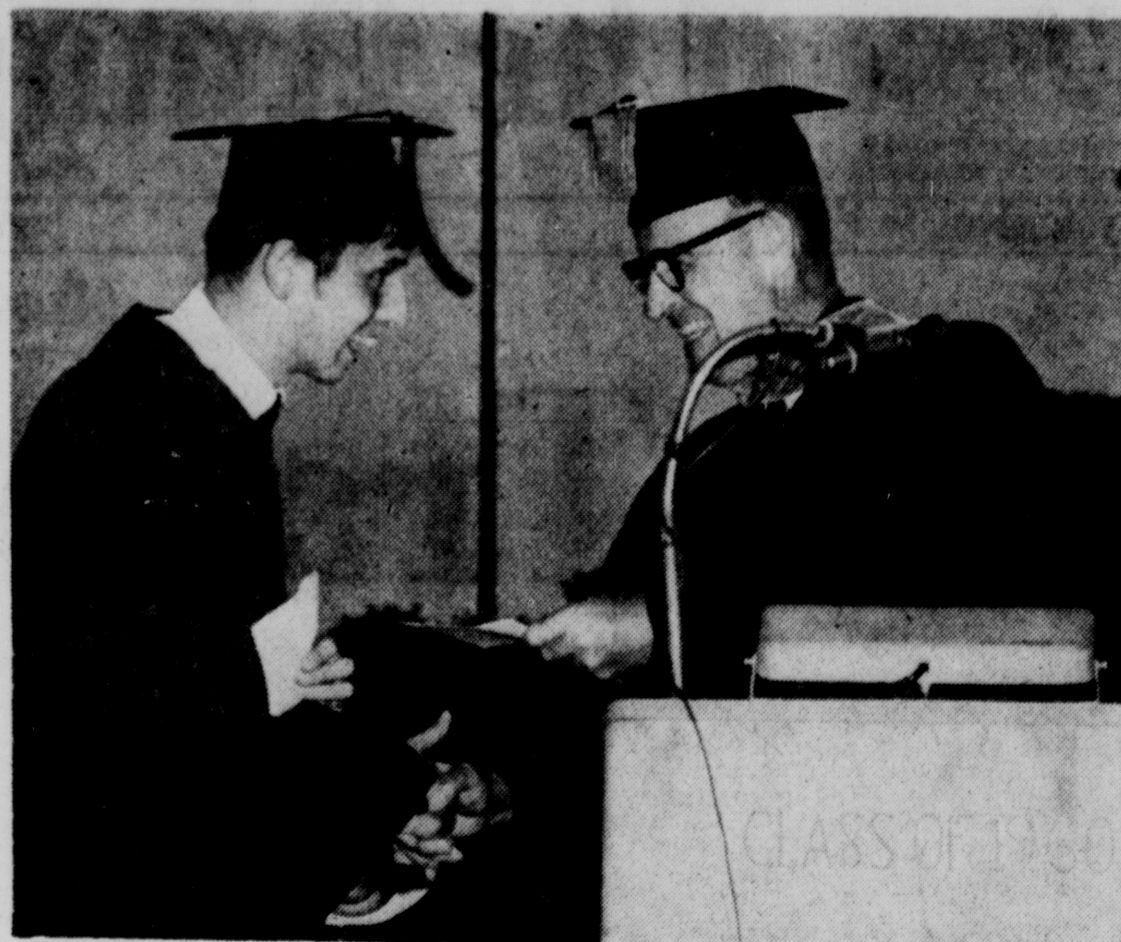

The PERB report on principals salaries noted that the elementary principal's salary for 1969-70 "may be $893 below the legal minimum."

Board Opposes Index

No salary index or schedule now exists for principals, and the Board of Education has gone on record against an index system for principals. Principals have asked for a raise for 1969-70 of $1,159; the board has offered $1,000. No resolution has been reached.

The PERB report suggested a limit of 10 per cent of the base for a raise, never to exceed $1,200. The report also said that both the principals and board's reports were "equitable received, but a long-range solution to the problem of hierarchical inequity" should be agreed upon.

District principal Steeves said that a special executive session would be held tonight. The school board reorganizational meeting will be held Tuesday night.

Paltz Valedictorian:

Minimize the Gap of Generations

NEW PALTZ of numerous awards including the coveted National Merit Scholarship said that as a result of the changing role of at commencement exercises, American foreign policy and the development of the atomic bomb "we of the young generation have lived our entire lives in a world that can be completely destroyed in an instant."

Impola noted that the "burden of anxiety these changes have given us" has brought about greater political awareness among young people. He explained that this political awareness did not mean demonstrations and riots alone, but rather "a greater knowledge of our country's political situation and a greater concern for our foreign policy."

"Today's youth knows that the entire world, themselves included, is profoundly affected by every move our government makes," he said. "This scrutiny of our world politics and careful weighing of our values has carried over into many spheres of activities," Impola explained. "Many of us are asking such questions as 'Why should a few exist in dire poverty in this country, while most enjoy unparalleled affluence?' and 'Does this nation truly live according to the ideals that it preaches?'"

However, the 17-year-old honor student also pointed out that "this uncertainty about many formerly basic values has left a number of us drifting and not knowing precisely what to do and what not to do."

Most of us have followed the safe proven rules by which our parents lived," he continued, while "the more daring or the more foolish have had dangerous experiments with drugs, sex and alcohol."

Impola also said that the practices of young people regarding sexual morality were not very much different from those of adults, explaining that what has changed are the attitudes towards discussing this touchy subject.

In concluding his presentation, Impola said that in order to understand young people, adults should try to understand their environment, and that young people should display a similar understanding.

"We all must try to understand each other's point of view," he said, "and if we take enough time to really communicate, then we as students will see that you adults are not harsh dictators and you will see that we are not senseless rebels."

Mones, Rapp Leading Contenders For Republican Chairmanship

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON — The city Republican Committee will meet tonight and widespread reports indicate that either Melvin Mones or James A. Rapp will emerge as the party's new chairman.

Mones, a county legislator and Rapp, vice president of the city committee and finance chairman, were among several names mentioned to succeed party chairman Ward B. Ingalsbe Jr., who resigned on Wednesday.

Also mentioned were Peter C. Fisher, an aldermanic candidate from the Fourth Ward, James F. Martin, former supervisor and alderman and Raymond Arma-ter, a former alderman. Both would accept.

However, it now appears that the two serious contenders are Mones and Rapp. Both have said that they would accept the nomination of offered by the committee.

Mones is most often described as "a winner. He led the ticket in 1967 when he first ran for county legislator. He is a candidate this year for reelection.

Mones was also mentioned as a mayoral candidate in the early days of March before the unofficial Republican convention named James J. Tyrrell as its candidate. Tyrrell subsequently went on to defeat two challengers, former city chairman John R. Mayone and Clifford V. Bunting an Uptown businessman.

Shortly before Tyrrell's primary victory, Ingalsbe, then party chairman, threw his support to one of Tyrrell's opponents, Bunting. Ingalsbe said then that his chairmanship would not be compatible with either Tyrrell's or Mayone's election. His resignation came eight days after Tyrrell's 30-vote victory over Bunting.

Rapp is a committeeman of long standing and reportedly commands widespread support among his fellow committeemen. As chairman of the Finance Committee, he was the moving force in a Republican "Social Hour" in April that raised several thousand dollars for the party.

Armater and Martin, both prominent Republicans, were mentioned as alderman-at-large candidates this spring but neither accepted the nomination. Neither are considered a serious contender for the nomination.

Crucial Months

The next several months are crucial for the party which has seen its fortunes dwindle to only one elected city official in what Mones terms "the disastrous election of 1968."

As for the coming elections, Mones says that "this is not a one man proposition. We cannot allow ourselves to dwell on one or two candidates."

Rapp says he is "100 per cent in back of the thinking of the committeemen." The majority of the committeemen (26) nominated Tyrrell in March and an even larger majority (reportedly 25 of 27) allegedly opposed Ingalsbe's decision to support Bunting the Friday before Primary Day.

It is expected that some 40 to 45 committeemen will turn out at tonight's meeting in the legislators chambers of the county office building at 8 p. m. The meeting will be open to the public.

MOVING DAY — Workmen prepare to move the red brick and stucco house at 270 Clinton Avenue to new location. The building had been used for professional offices of dentists since 1931 — first the late Dr. Robert Baylor and then the late Dr. George C. Rifenburg. ## Historians to Hold Seminar in Paltz

NEW PALTZ — The Office of State History of the State Education Department will hold a diversified and comprehensive program, including lectures, seminars and workshops, on the use of the historical society in the school, here, today and Friday.

The two-day program, which will be conducted in the Deyo Assembly Hall of the Huguenot Historical Society of New Paltz, will have a two-fold purpose according to its coordinator, John F. Von Daacke, senior historian.

On the one hand "it is aimed to make Societies aware of the potential for service and reward working with young people," and on the other hand to make the schools aware of a neglected resource in the local area.

Von Daacke says that another purpose of the two-day program will be to make the historical societies "aware of the need for more stress in the area of the humanities."

"It is the historical society, both as a museum and center of community activity, which offers the logical meeting place of the verbal and the visual sources of human education," Von Baacke says, "and if education in the humanities is not to be left wholly to the programmers of the electronic media, it would seem the local historical agencies have a role that challenges their best efforts."

Safe Driving Course Slated

NEW PALTZ

A three-hour state mandated safe driving practice course for adults designed to meet requirements of the state's vehicle and traffic codes will be held on Monday and Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p. m. in Room 102 of the high school here.

A $5 registration fee will be charged for the course, said the school. Participants must register prior to the date of the course and may do so by contacting the high school.

Labels Marlboro Defeat 'Protest Vote'

MARLBORO

A member of the Marlboro Central School District Board of Education has characterized the recent defeat of a $322,300 school improvement bond issue as a "protest vote" by unhappy taxpayers.

According to Melvin Kirby, who supported the bond issue, many of the taxpayers were responding more to general problems of increased taxes rather than the specifics of this particular proposal.

The bond issue, defeated by a 117 to 83 vote margin, was called for in order to finance the construction of a cafeteria at the Middle Hope School and to reconstruct part of the Marlboro Middle School.

Kirby said that these improvements are greatly needed by the school district and indicated that a similar proposal would be submitted to the taxpayers at some time in the future.

14 Attend Charter Hearing

KINGSTON

About 14 persons turned out Wednesday night for the Ulster County Charter Commission hearing on proposed sections of Women Voters attended the hearing and made suggestions, which Alfonso said had already been incorporated in the section on financial administration.

The next commission hearing has been scheduled for July 9 at 8 p. m. in the Ulster County Office Building.

Swim Program Starts Friday

KINGSTON

The Kingston Recreation Department will start its swimming program at the Kingston Point Beach Pool Friday morning at 10. All parents with children over six years of age desiring to enroll them may do so at the Point Pool between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., Friday and Monday.

Those children who are enrolled will be tested and placed in the class that most fits their ability to swim. Children will be tested upon enrollment by the instructors, who are qualified water safety instructors.

All residents of the City of Kingston are eligible to take the lessons.

The hearing is one of a series being conducted by the commission which is currently drafting a proposed charter for submission to the County Legislature. If approved by that body it will then be submitted for a referendum.

Surtax Bill Healthy Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After a miraculous overnight recovery, President Nixon's income-tax surcharge bill is healthy again, and on the road to House passage Monday.

The $9.2 billion tax package, which extends the 10 per cent surtax beyond Monday's expiration date, was almost given up for dead Tuesday when House leaders postponed a vote on it for two weeks.

New life was pumped into it Wednesday after GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford promised 170 Republicans would vote for the bill—40 more than the 130 he had predicted the day before.

On the basis of the new count, Speaker John W. McCormack rescheduled the measure for Monday, since only 47 Democrats are needed to assure passage, assuming all members are present and voting.

The Monday vote could work to the advantage of the bill's supporters. Absenteeism is high on Monday when many Eastern congressmen take off for long weekends. These congressmen include Democratic liberals who have been waging the principal fight against the bill, pressing for commitments on a sweeping bill to close tax loopholes.

Passage Monday, and Senate approval later, would extend the tax for six months at 10 per cent and another six months at 5 per cent through June 30, 1970 when it would expire.

The bill also would repeal, retroactive to April 18, 1969, the 7 per cent investment tax credit for business machinery purchases; relieve 12 million low income taxpayers of some, or all, of their income taxes; and postpone for a year the scheduled reduction of the 10 per cent telephone and 7 per cent automobile excise taxes due to go to 5 per cent each, Jan. 1.

Omaha Has 2nd Night of Disorder

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Business buildings along a six-block stretch were smoldering or in ruins today after a night of burning, looting and sniping in the predominantly Negro Near North Side of the city.

No serious injuries were reported.

It was the second consecutive night of disorder touched off by the fatal shooting of a 14-year-old Negro girl by a white policeman—James Loder, 30, identified in his city personnel file as the adopted son of film actress Hedy Lamarr.

Vandalism, Looting

Vandalism and looting were reported by police in an area 55 blocks long and 24 blocks wide. Firemen who were the targets of bricks and bottles refused to fight flames in the business section until provided with a police escort. Police Lt. Lewis Ruberti said shots were fired at a number of his men.

Helmeted police armed with riot guns were stationed around the firemen and their rigs as the flames illuminated the muggy summer sky.

The central police station reported that at least 30 persons had been jailed on charges ranging from carrying concealed weapons to illegal entry of a building.

Major fires were confined to the main business street although minor ones broke out elsewhere in the area.

Vandalism, window-breaking and looting were widespread. "They just seem to be jumping around and hitting us everywhere," said Police Inspector Al Pattavina.

An officer of the Omaha unit of the Nebraska National Guard reported early today that his men were standing by—apparently at the request of Mayor Eugene Leahy.

Firemen Called In

All off-duty firemen were called in.

Gov. Norbert Tiemann flew back from South Dakota Wednesday night after being informed of the situation.

The shooting of the Negro girl, Vivian Strong, occurred Tuesday night when police answered a call for a reported break-in at a low-income housing area.

Loder was charged with manslaughter Wednesday in Omaha Municipal Court. He pleaded innocent and was released on $50 bond. He declined to discuss the incident with newsmen.

Loder has been suspended from the police force for 15 days.

Rhine Search Goes on for Barge Linked to Killing of Fish

BONN (UPI)—West German and Dutch police searched today for a barge that might have dumped overboard the insecticide that killed 40 million fish in the Rhine River.

A week after the first poisoned fish bobbed to the surface, authorities still were puzzled by the toxin's origin. They concentrated on the Endosulfan, a compound marketed by the Farbwerke Hoechst concern of West Germany under the trade name Thiodan.

Spokesmen for the firm denied its riverhead Thiodan plant at Griesheim had flushed the crop spray into the Main River, which flows into the Rhine. Factory officials said two 13-gallon drums of the insecticide could have caused the pollution and death.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved the use of the chemical in the United States.

As the search went on, workmen on foot and in boats hauled away most of the dead fish. The carnage was spread along 200 miles of water, from Bingen in West Germany, to the Zuider Zee estuary in neighboring Holland.

Experts said up to 80 per cent of the fish in that stretch of the Rhine could have died. It would take from three to five years to replenish the stock, they said.

Another Air Battle Over Suez Canal, Israel Claims a Soviet-Built MIG 21

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli warplanes battled Egyptian jets over the Gulf of Suez today and shot down one of the Arabs' Soviet-built MIG21s, military spokesmen said.

The Israelis said all their planes returned safely.

A spokesman said the air battle began at 8:30 a.m. when Israeli jets on a "routine patrol" intercepted several Egyptian aircraft in Israeli-controlled air space south of Suez City.

The Israelis chased the Egyptian planes and downed one. Returning pilots said the MIG crashed in Egyptian territory.

It was the second of the advanced, delta-winged MIG21s shot down in the past three days over the Gulf of Suez.

According to Israeli figures, it was the 20th Egyptian aircraft downed by Israelis since the end of the June 1967 Middle East war.

In ground fighting, six Israeli soldiers were wounded, one seriously, when an army patrol vehicle hit a mine in the Wadi Paran in the Arava Desert 50 miles south of the Dead Sea.

In the Old City of Jerusalem, Israeli police and soldiers evicted 88 Arabs from their homes and offices and confiscated five buildings adjacent to the Wailing Wall.

The move was made for "security purposes" after a series of explosions near the Wailing Wall, a government statement said Wednesday night.

SISTER GABRIELLE, OSB

MISS MARY L. KEATING

3 in New Posts At Benedictine

KINGSTON Promotions and new assignments of three education and nursing directors at Benedictine Hospital have been announced by Sister Mary Charles OSB, hospital administrator.

One Returning
Sister Gabrielle OSB, formerly in-service education director has been named director of nursing. Miss Mary L. Keating, who was associate director of the Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing, has been appointed in-service coordinator and Sister Henrietta OSB, will return to staff nursing after 10 years as nursing service director.

Sister Gabrielle received her diploma in nursing at Benedictine Hospital in 1953, her BSN, from Seton Hall University in 1958 and her masters degree from St. John's University in 1966.

She was instructor of fundamentals in nursing at Benedictine School of Nursing from 1958-60, was instructor of medical surgical nursing at the school from 1960 to 1966 and became instructor of medical surgical nursing at Mt. St. Mary's in 1967. She served Benedictine again from 1967 to 1969 as in-service education director.

Sister Gabrielle is also active in New York State and District 11 Nursing Organization and is chairman of the District 11

Education Committee. Miss Keating, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Keating of 43 Brewster Street, Kingston is a graduate of the Academy of St. Ursula, Benedictine School of Nursing and Catholic University, Washington, D. C. She also attended Teacher's College, Columbia University.

Work Praised
A science instructor from 1950 to 1965 she became associate director of the Benedictine School of Nursing in 1965 and served until the school was closed with the last class graduating this month.

Active in nursing activities, she was president of the Benedictine Alumnae Association for three years, president of the New York State Nurses Association, District 11 for four years.

Sister Henrietta, who returns to staff nursing with all the burdens and responsibilities of a director, has been praised for "contributing much" to the Nursing Service Department.

Commenting on Sister Henrietta's accomplishments, the announcement said, "We have all watched the institution grow from childhood to adolescence. This growth necessitated many changes in organization. This process has been dynamic and rewarding. Sister Henrietta can be proud of her accomplishments."

Legislator Mugged Near Capitol Steps

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Working at New York's historic old State Capitol has become increasingly hazardous duty these days, as Albany's corps of muggers has advanced on the seat of state government.

The latest in a series of recent incidents that has alarmed Capitol personnel was the mugging of a member of the legislature early Wednesday morning as he walked from a nearby restaurant to his apartment building a block away.

Assemblyman Francis J. (Zip) Boland, a Republican from Binghamton, told police three Negro youths pounced on him, ripped a wallet containing $60 from a pants pocket, tore a watch from his wrist and tried unsuccessfully to pry a ring from his finger.

When he resisted the attack, the 46-year-old Boland said, two more youths joined in to help subdue him. He was treated at a hospital for various bruises and for scrapes and cuts on his hands.

Boland was the second state lawmaker to fall prey to a mugging attack in the last year. During the 1968 legislative session, Sen. William E. Adams, R-Kenmore, was knocked to the sidewalk by an assailant about 50 feet from the main entrance to the old Ten Eyck Hotel, two blocks from the Capitol.

Adams, who also had been walking alone during the early morning hours, was relieved of wallet, watch and ring. The mugger punched him in the face but the injury was not serious.

Shortly beforehand, a high-ranking legal aide to the legislature was robbed by a pair of muggers during the dinner hour as he walked between two restaurants—only two doors apart—on Elk Street, a block to the south of the Capitol.

There also was a daylight attack that stirred the Capitol. A senator's pretty secretary, en route to work, parked her car and while walking along a viaduct sidewalk a block from the Capitol, was accosted by a man who ripped open the bodice of her dress. Her screams attracted attention and the man fled.

During the 1969 legislative session, a rash of purse-snatchings near the building prompted the Capital Police, the state's building guards, to take special measures. They offered a "safe conduct" escort to any employee fearful of walking alone to his automobile. The guards are armed with .38 caliber revolvers.

Perrine's Bridge

Public sentiment rallied around the persevering efforts of citizens of the local community and those of state and county officials to save for the future Perrine's Bridge, oldest covered bridge in New York State, which is located between Rifton and Rosendale on Route 213. Ceremonies marking the restoration and preservation of this historic landmark will take place Sunday, June 29.

From the Thruway, where endless motor vehicles go whizzing by as if propelled by some strange madness, millions can view this structure and visualize the yesterday when the nation used horse power and iron-rimmed wheels. Because of its location, this century-old bridge is probably seen more often than any other bridge of its kind in the state. It is surprising how many get a glimpse of this ancient bridge and remember, even though it is viewed for only a brief moment by travelers in the northbound lanes.

Built in 1850, Perrine's Bridge is the only sizable example of the Burr arch truss still standing in this state where it was invented. The bridge's chief enemy in recent years were floods and weather.

Ulster County is steeped in history and the bridge is of deep concern to those residents who are interested in the preservation of old landmarks. No newly constructed bridge of steel and cement can have the genuine flavor of one built 119 years ago.

Season to Be Careful

Driving the car but a short distance, one fact becomes apparent:

School is out. Youngsters are to be seen everywhere playing in the streets, riding bicycles carelessly and indulging in carefree, thoughtless fun with their playmates.

This is the season for exuberant youth to seek pleasures. But it is also the season of tragedy. It's a good time to warn children to be aware of the many dangers. It's a good time to urge parents to warn their young ones of these dangers. It's a good time to warn motorists and to urge them to exercise even greater caution.

A moment of thoughtlessness, a prank and the joy of summer gives way to a lifetime of regret.

Children should be directed to the neighborhood playground for their activities. They also should be taught methods of self-preservation while bathing in lakes, pools or other bodies of water. They should be taught to swim in childhood so that the enjoyments of water sports are theirs during all their years.

A resolve by everyone to drive, cross streets, swim and play carefully in the ensuing few months will pay big dividends.

Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy's statement that this country is on the brink of a runaway inflation that might require the imposition of wage and price controls sent the stock market plunging. Wage and price controls would freeze the economy.

Mayor-elect Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., told his admirers he wants to be mayor of all Fayette and prove that black men can work with whites in love. Veteran Mayor R. G. Allen pledged his support. Evers is the brother of Medgar Evers, who was slain nearly six years ago by a sniper.

People Will Want Voice In Changing Constitution

WASHINGTON — The dramatic emphasis given this week to the ceremony at which a new chief justice was sworn in may tend to leave the impression that whoever presides over the Supreme Court has more power than the other eight justices.

When decisions are made, however, the chief justice has only one vote, and he can be outvoted by eight-to-one. The chief justice does co-ordinate the work of the court and arranges the administrative details of its operation, but the rulings are the responsibilities of all the justices voting as individuals.

It has been natural perhaps to use the phrase "Warren court" to characterize the trend in the majority opinions handed down while Chief Justice Warren headed the court. Over the years, a majority or minority has also been described as "conservative" or "liberal" or even "radical."

For in the 16 years during which Chief Justice Warren was on the court, there was an inclination on the part of a majority to "interpret" the Constitution to such an extent that the rulings were widely regarded as virtual amendments to the Constitution itself.

Because so many of the decisions of the high court are of a technical nature, the public is usually familiar only with the results rather than the reasoning by which the majority reaches its conclusions.

The big change in the court's position in history started in 1937, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt severely criticized its rulings and asked Congress to pass a law enlarging the court from nine to possibly 15 justices. This would have given him a chance to make as many as six new appointments and thus obtain a majority to his liking. This proposal was called "court-packing," and Congress did not approve because public opinion reacted against it. By fortuitous circumstances, vacancies occurred on the court, and Mr. Roosevelt in the next four years had the opportunity to appoint enough new justices to provide a majority whose views were in line with his own thinking on current questions.

The shift came soon, as a majority of the justices abandoned the long-standing principle that, once the Supreme Court makes a decision, the only way it can be reversed is by an amendment to the Constitution. Mr. Roosevelt had in his speeches expressed the belief that this method was "difficult" and "time-consuming," and that the court should fit its decisions to any changing era. As a consequence, the new justices tended to let their own concepts on sociological problems and questions of national policy dominate their rulings. From that time on, an oligarchy of five men has been able, in many instances, to proclaim rulings which amount to alterations of the Constitution itself.

When judge Warren E. Burger of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was nominated by the President recently to be chief justice, Mr. Nixon referred to him as a "strict constructionist."

This perhaps conveyed the idea that the new chief justice would favor the upholding of long-established precedents and would not approve of arbitrary interpretations which, though meritorious in objective, had the effect of amending the Constitution.

The Supreme Court in the last several years has been the subject of a good deal of controversy. Many lawyers have contended that codding of criminals has been allowed through its rulings, and that the high court has gone beyond its constitutional power in seeking to solve controversial problems in American life instead of leaving it to the people to make changes in the Constitution through the prescribed amending process. Party politicians try to develop policies based on what they think is the prevailing public opinion, but Supreme Court justices are not supposed to do so.

Irrespective of whether the new justices appointed in the next few years change the ways of the court, it seems likely that the American people inevitably will insist upon having a voice in any rewriting of the Constitution. Constitutional conventions can be held periodically to enable the people themselves to reverse decisions of the high court and make changes in the Constitution. The states have a right to request Congress to call a constitutional convention which can adopt amendments on any subject. Such proposals must be ratified by three fourths of the states, and the approval of Congress is not required.

Democrats Pin Political Hopes on Their Veer Left

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The badly fragmented Democrats are seen by some of their own most knowledgeable figures as pushing toward a hard Left at a turn in history when a fairly solid national trend to the Right may be in the making.

One respected Democratic campaign expert argues that the leftward bent is too sharp for the realities of the time, that unnecessarily it is yielding to President Nixon and the Republicans not only the strong Right that is easily his but also the broad middle where most of the votes are.

A Democrat of national prominence told this reporter recently that Nixon's high status in the public opinion polls accurately registers his success in attuning himself to a national mood marked by rising concern over racial turmoil, crime and campus unrest.

Conversation with other established party men suggests that many agree with this assessment of the President's current standing before the country.

Not all of these are convinced, of the evidence of some key local elections this year, that an enduring rightist trend is building. But most Democrats fear it.

They worry over the fate of a dozen or more liberal Democratic senators whose careers go on the block in 1970. One leader, outside Washington, thinks that if the trend is real and lasting, Nixon could be re-elected in 1972 over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy or anybody else.

Notwithstanding all this, many party figures and groups seem driven to the Left, away from the troubled center.

For the arch liberals of the John Kenneth Galbraith variety, some now linked with the New Democratic Coalition, an answer is easy to find. They have never been concerned with the consequences to the party of their doctrinaire rigidity. In a furor over the Vietnam war and the lingering memories of the 1968 Chicago convention, they are not in a mood today to accommodate to those of even just faintly more pragmatic views.

Nothing could have pleased the doctrinaires more than the votes of the 1969 Wisconsin Democratic convention calling for immediate withdrawal of U.S. forces in Vietnam and condemning "police over-reaction" at Chicago last year.

But what is shoving the pragmatic liberals leftward?

One Democratic spokesman here thinks that the posture many adopted in 1968 in opposing former President Johnson's policies placed them in a leftist mold they cannot now escape. This man suggests some liberals still are captivated by the evident success of the late Robert Kennedy's unconventional appeals to such opposites as the troubled blacks and the fearful white ethnic groups.

Other Democrats argue more simply that the country's seeming conservative mood permits Nixon to preempt the middle, forcing them to abandon it and go left.

By this view, shared by some at least of those liberal Democratic senators presently considering formation of a "caucus" to give them a loud, collective voice on major issues, the Democrats' best hope for 1970 and 1972 is to stand out against the "rightist trend" and try to reverse it.

Though liberals eager to keep their skins in 1970 do not like to hear it, the hard argument advanced in some party quarters is that if the rightward move is truly strong they cannot arrest it and will probably lose no matter what they do.

If it is not, so the reasoning goes, then they (and the country, in their judgment) will benefit at the polls from their outspoken efforts to oppose the war, build bridges to the frustrated blacks, and persuade the nation's disaffected young that it has higher priorities than fighting and killing.

An aggressive Democratic senator or two thinks the highest urgency should invest this leftward counterpush. Fear is growing that, if fall comes without a Vietnam settlement, October will be a new flashpoint touching off greater campus unrest than ever.

Drew Pearson Says Emissaries Sent to Quiet Hughes About ABM Tests

Campus Revolts

Early this year following visits to many college campuses, Drew Pearson wrote a series of articles regarding the student revolt in which he reported that an international network was behind the more militant students, though they represented a small minority. He reported that the Chinese wing of the Communist party was one of their inspirations. This week Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas developed essentially the same information during his investigation of campus disorders.

WASHINGTON — Without any fanfare, the Atomic Energy Commission has been conducting highly significant tests deep under the deserts of Nevada to demonstrate that the anti-ballistic missile system will really work.

And to prevent any public protests over the tests, President Nixon has dispatched two of his most trusted personal emissaries, Bebe Rebozo and Herbert Klein, his communications director, to Nevada to smooth the feathers of Howard Hughes, biggest owner of Nevada real estate, who has protested vigorously against previous underground nuclear tests.

Reason for the urgency of the current tests is that Nixon wants them finished prior to Senate debate over the anti-ballistic missile system in order to counteract the untested and won't work.

The Nevada tests consist of exploding large doses of nuclear energy in vacuum compartments underground. The vacuum compartments are supposed to simulate the lack of air density in outer space so the ABM counter missiles would be exploded at a very high altitude.

In these underground vacuum compartments are being detonated nuclear warheads of a simulated 200-megaton strength, which is four times greater than anything yet exploded. So far the biggest nuclear explosion is a 50-megaton blast by the Russians. It's planned that the United States will use up to 200 megatons to knock out any incoming enemy missiles. ABM's tentative plan is to explode incoming missiles high up in outer space, in effect fight a nuclear duel in the skies.

So far the tests have indicated, according to some scientists close to the scene, that the ABM would be able to knock out any Chinese missiles, but not Russian missiles which are highly sophisticated.

Meanwhile, Nixon's personal envoys to the Howard Hughes empire, Rebozo and Klein, were not able to see Hughes himself, but talked to his right-hand man, Robert Mayhew, who seemed impressed with the fact that the President would send his intimate friend from Key Biscayne and his Director of Communications to see him.

Who's Tapping Wires?

What the nation needs right now is a forthright Congressional investigation of wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping, otherwise known as bugging.

At present the nation is confused over a vital question which could move us closer to a police state. Reasons for the confusion are:

— J. Edgar Hoover says that the late Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy ordered the tapping of Dr. Martin Luther King's telephone.

— Former Attorneys General Ramsey Clark and Nick Katzenbach say that Hoover was the eager beaver to do the bugging.

— William Loeb, the New Hampshire publisher, has given a sworn affidavit that an assistant director of the FBI told him Bobby Kennedy operated a special division to spy on Jimmy Hoffa and tapped his wire intensively.

— The Justice Department has stated in court that the FBI engaged in wholesale electronic eavesdropping over an indefinite period of years. LBJ stopped this.

— Finally, Attorney General Mitchell has let it be known that he will resume wholesale wiretapping, regardless of court opinions which have ruled evidence obtained by wiretapping to be unconstitutional.

All this adds up to the fact that the public is entitled to know who is tapping whose wires and why. A Senate probe of wiretapping was held under Sen. Edward Long, a Missouri Democrat, later accused by Life magazine of having a conflict of interest with Jimmy Hoffa's lawyer. Long delved into Internal Revenue eavesdropping, but was scared to death regarding the FBI and J. Edgar Hoover. They were left uninvestigated.

The fact is that the last three Presidents have been equally afraid of tangling with Hoover. It is also a fact that, after building up the efficiency of the FBI over a long period of years, Hoover has now become a dog in the manger regarding crime prevention.

When the International Association of Chiefs of Police picked one of Hoover's assistant directors, Quinn Tamm, to be its director, Hoover turned on him and tried to get him fired.

When Rep. James Scheuer proposed a special institute on crime prevention in the Justice Department, Hoover opposed it as a rival to the FBI.

When Attorney General Kennedy tried to set up a special unit in the Justice Department to fight the Mafia, as did other Attorneys General, Hoover opposed it because it might compete with the FBI.

Afraid of Hoover
Not one Attorney General in the past eight years has been able to work with Hoover. Though supposed to be part of the Justice Department, he operates entirely on his own. Months pass and he does not even speak to the Attorney General.

His is the only agency of government, except for Central Intelligence, whose books are not scrutinized by the General Accounting Office. He can spend money at will, answerable to no superior. And when he comes before Congressional appropriations committees its members fall all over themselves asking Hoover how much money he needs.

Some Congressmen, of course, are acutely aware of the fact that Hoover's far-flung investigatory can, or already has, picked up some of their own private shenanigans — as when a well-known "house" was raided in Washington and the FBI picked up the "madam's" little black book listing the names of 200 Congressmen.

There aren't many Congressmen with enough intestinal fortitude to probe wiretapping, but there are some and they should do it.

The Gallup Report

Puritan Ethic Still Powerful Despite Liberal Views on Sex

By GEORGE GALLUP
Copyright, 1969, American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited except with written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J., June 21 — The puritan ethic regarding sex continues to be a powerful influence in America, even though the more visible and vocal groups in U.S. society may have created the impression that the country is undergoing a revolution in attitudes toward sex.

The "best seller" books, the "best attended" movies, and the popularity of magazines such as Playboy are cited as evidence of a new viewpoint on sex on the part of the U.S. public. But it should be pointed out that it is primarily the young people of the nation who are patronizing the movies and buying the racy books and magazines.

A new Gallup survey, that reached people not only in the "Bible Belt," but in all regions of the nation, sought to determine the attitudes of adults on nudity in Broadway plays and in magazines, their concern about pornography, their willingness to join protest groups, and finally on sex in schools.

First of Two Parts

Today's report is the first of a two-part series on the attitudes of Americans toward sex — Is There a Sex Revolution in the U.S.? The second and final part, to be published later, will answer the question, "How does the public want society to deal with sex — are present laws dealing with sex literature adequate? Should sex be taught in schools?"

Fifteen hundred and two persons, 21 years of age and older, were interviewed by trained Gallup interviewers in over 300 localities across the nation in a survey conducted May 16 through 19.

The results show that for the nation as a whole conventional views on sex predominate, although certain small and important segments of society have adopted a totally different outlook.

As a case in point, a majority of all adults interviewed (73 per cent) say they would find pictures of nudes in magazines objectionable. 76 per cent would be offended by topless nightclub waitresses, while an even higher proportion (81 per cent) object to actors and actresses appearing in the nude in Broadway plays.

Age Is Major Factor

However, one's views on the exposure of flesh depend in large measure on his age and educational background, and if a "shock meter" could be devised, the least shocked would be young males, with a college education and a reasonably affluent background, living on the East or West coast. At the other end of the scale would be found older women, with little education, from a middle or lower income background who live in the middle or southern areas of the country, often referred to as the Bible Belt.

Youth Hold Different Views

Among teenagers and college students, something approaching a revolution in attitudes on sex may be in the making. Evidence for this can be found in a recent Gallup survey of the nation's college campuses.

Two out of every three college students interviewed (66 per cent) think it is not wrong for men and women to have pre-marital sex relations, with 72 per cent of college males holding this view and 55 per cent of women.

There are differences, however, on the basis of the type of school attended. A majority of students in both public and private colleges say sex before marriage is not wrong, but a majority of college students in church-related colleges hold the opposite view.

Media Hit By Many

Many Americans express shock at the treatment of sex on TV, in movies and in magazines, although a few in this group no doubt are the first in line at the racy movies or the last to turn off the set when something provocative is shown.

"The movies today are a far cry from Shirley Temple," said one irate mother of four. "I wonder how far they will go?"

To discover the views of Americans on the fare offered by the movies, TV and in magazines, this question was asked:

Have you seen anything dealing with sex on television or in the movies or in print in a magazine that was objectionable?

Here are the findings:

38 per cent say they have seen something objectionable on television.

25 per cent say they have seen something objectionable in print in a magazine.

23 per cent say they have seen something objectionable in the movies.

Religion as a Factor

The regular churchgoer, although sometimes portrayed as a self-righteous moralist, holds views not far different from those of the non-churchgoer or the infrequent attendee. Age, educational background and sex are far more decisive factors in determining one's views.

Roman Catholics are found to be slightly more liberal in their views on nudity and sex than are Protestants. But Jews are by far the most liberal of all major religious groups.

Sex Literature Through Mails

"Now — a marriage manual that goes all the way!" Millions of Americans are receiving advertisements such as this through the mail.

To determine the actual number, Gallup interviewers asked this question:

Have you received any sex literature in the mail recently which you found objectionable?

Twelve per cent of the sample of adults replied in the affirmative or 14 million adults when projected to the total adult population.

Interestingly, it is the most affluent segment of the populace (those earning $15,000 a year or more) who most frequently receive sex literature. Twenty-one per cent answered "yes" to the question.

Freeman Readers Write Letters to Editor

Woodstock, N. Y. June 23, 1969
The Woodstock Scene
 Editor, The Freeman:

As a person who chose to make his home in Woodstock because it seemed to me one of the most friendly and enlightened towns in the country, I am puzzled and dismayed by the outbreak of hostility among some of my fellow-residents toward young people whose style of life and dress does not conform to their own. There is a growing tendency to lump all non-conforming youths under the convenient label "hippies" and make them the scapegoat for our own fears and frustrations. I believe we should face the fact, unpleasant as it is, that the things which are deeply wrong with our society—overpopulation, racism, injustice, corruption and war to name a few—stem from our own and past generations, not from theirs. That the young people are rebelling against a situation in which these obvious evils persist and flourish should not be surprising and should even be a source of hope that some of these scourges will one day be eliminated from our uneasy and precarious world.

Admittedly the form this youth rebellion takes is often irrational and, in some cases, self-destructive. I refer particularly to drugs and, more specifically, to what are known as quarrel and, in these violent times, I value any manifestations of peaceful human relations. In case anyone suspects that I make this observation from an ivory tower, let me point out that I've lived on Sunset Boulevard in the middle of the "strip" in Hollywood and rubbed shoulders for many months with thousands of "hippies." In Woodstock I live only a couple of hundred yards from the controversial "Big Deep" and some have camped on my land. I admit that neatness is not always one of their virtues but violence is not one of their

Kremlin Leaders Lukewarm Over the Cong 'Government'

By LEON DENNEN
 NEA Foreign News Analyst
 PARIS

As female Communist politicians go, Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong's newly baked "foreign minister" at the Paris peace talks, is a motherly type not without charm.

But it is increasingly clear each day that the "Provisional Revolutionary Government" (PRG) that Nguyen Thi Binh represents is a myth. It exists only in Hanoi's propaganda and in the imagination of American and European Viet Cong-firsters.

There is, in fact, considerable evidence that the Vietnam specialists in the Russian foreign ministry were not too happy about the establishment of the government.

"Whom does the PRG represent?" asked a veteran French Communist who works closely with the Russians. "How many more divisions does 'the Viet Cong' have now that it has created a government?"

In the Kremlin's view, the PRG "will hardly alter the balance of power in Vietnam." The Russians, who find it increasingly burdensome to lavish military and economic aid on Hanoi and the Viet Cong, have decided some time ago that the Communists cannot win the war.

What particularly irked the Kremlin leaders was the fact that neither the Communist party of North Vietnam (Lao Dong) nor the South Vietnamese Reds who created the provisional government were represented at the recent Moscow international conference. They deliberately stayed away to show their support for the Red Chinese.

Under the circumstances, there is little love in Moscow for the PRG. There is some belief that its formation was inspired by Mao Tse-tung against Russia's wishes.

Nevertheless, it would be too much to ask the Soviet leaders to ignore the mythical government. They must co-operate with the PRG if only to avoid charges by Mao, Fidel Castro and other practitioners of revolutionary brinkmanship that Russia "betrayed" the people of Vietnam.

However, by now there is little doubt that the sudden decision to create a "rival" government was intended mainly for psychological and propaganda purposes.

It was designed to influence public opinion in the West, especially the United States. It aims to build up the Communists' image as "reformers" who want to bring social justice to the long-suffering people and play down their images as "nationalist patriots" who promise only war.

But the Viet Cong under any other name is still the Viet Cong. The new "government" does not upset the fundamental elements of the Paris peace talks.

Nguyen Thi Binh, for all her matronly charm, is a diehard Marxist-Leninist realist. She obviously knows that the Viet Cong will not win the war on the battlefield. She hopes to win it at the conference table. She is playing for time and Western sympathy.

The "startling" formation of the Provisional Revolutionary Government is likely to be the Communists' last diplomatic bombshell before they resume serious negotiations for a cease fire in Vietnam.

The Russians, like the Americans, would like to bring the conflict to an end. Right now, Red China has priority in Moscow's strategic plans.

At the international conference of Communists, Russia's party chief, Leonid Brezhnev, even proposed to all Asian nations, Red and non-Red, the establishment of a collective security system along China's periphery.

As usual, he attacked the "American imperialists" but the Chinese, who are themselves experts in Marxist-Leninist doubletalk, understood Brezhnev's meaning.

Of course, American impatience can still upset the diplomatic applecart and tip the Paris talks in favor of the Communists.

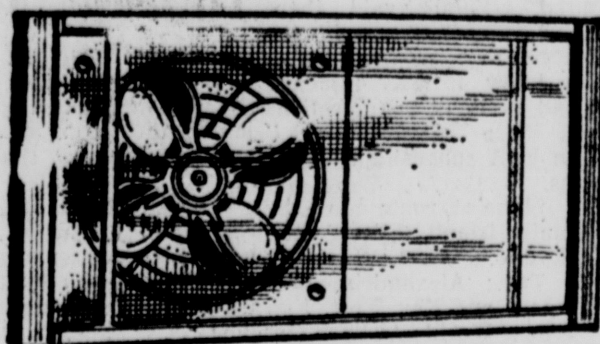

Veteran correspondents in Paris had a sense of déjà vu when the Viet Cong announced the PRG's formation.

They remembered Stalin's 1945 creation of a "provisional people's government" in Poland while harassed statesmen were giving birth to the United Nations in San Francisco. So-called progressives in the United States and elsewhere quickly became champions of the new "progressive" government. But the coalition lasted only a few months before Poland became a total Red country.

Canadian Indians May Regain Rights After 350 Years

GREETINGS — The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy (C) is greeted by a young supporter while being taken to the Charleston County Hospital for x-ray to determine if he is suffering from an ulcer. Abernathy is in the county jail under $50,000 bond charged with inciting to riot due to scattered racial violence which followed his arrest while leading an unauthorized night protest march. ### Ailing Newspaper Bill Faces Antitrust Committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bill to exempt newspaper joint operating agreements from the antitrust laws faced its first test today in a vote on the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee.

The outlook was uncertain. The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., strongly opposes the measure. The unit's ranking Republican, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois has indicated he favors it.

Food Festival Slated Friday At Woodstock

WOODSTOCK — An International Food Festival, sponsored by the Performing Arts of Woodstock will be held Friday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the parking lot at the National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties, and adjoining Woodstock Historical Society.

Ron Sanders will be performing folk dances throughout the sale and there will also be folk dance music. Special dishes may be purchased on an individual basis, or in bulk to take home.

The festival is a benefit for the Friday night folk dance program to be held at the town hall.

OTTAWA (AP) — Indians who lost their land and their rights when the white man came to Canada may regain both after more than 350 years of waiting.

Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien presented Parliament Wednesday with a long-range government plan that would remove all legal discrimination; give Canada's 237,490 registered Indians the same services provided other Canadians, and abolish the reservation system.

Indian leaders who came to Ottawa to hear his presentation received it cautiously.

"We have our suspicions," said Walter Dieter, president of the national Indian Brotherhood. "We want to see it happen. Then we'll believe it."

Chretien gave no timetable for the plan, but said he hoped it would be possible to repeal the Indian Act and abolish the federal government's Indian affairs branch within five years.

If implemented, this would end the status of Indians as wards of the Ottawa government, and require the provinces to provide Indians with the services they accord their other citizens.

Some Indians feel safer under the federal wing.

Chief Max Gros-Louis, secretary-treasurer of the Association of Quebec Indians, said: "The Indians of Quebec don't want anything to do with that bunch of bandits in the province of Quebec."

But Chretien stressed the purpose of the new government policy is to give the Indians all the freedom that Canadian citizenship implies, and they would be under provincial control only to the extent that all other Canadians are under provincial control.

Under the government proposal, the Indians would get ownership of the 6 million acres of reservation land they now occupy. Most of this acreage is in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Some of these reserves have tremendous development potential of rich oil and mineral deposits. But under the Indian Act anything done with the lands requires Chretien's approval, and private investors have been reluctant to supply capital for projects on land that cannot be pledged as security.

As an interim measure, Chretien said, the government intends to provide $50 million over the next five years for economic development of Indian communities.

Jet Hijacked 13 Minutes After Takeoff

MIAMI (UPI) — A Los Angeles to New York jetliner was commandeered 13 minutes after takeoff and ordered to Cuba Wednesday in the second hijacking of a transcontinental airliner within eight days.

The United Airlines DC8, carrying 58 persons, landed at Jose Marti Airport in Havana at 12:01 a.m. EDT today.

Cuban officials gave no immediate indication when it would be allowed to return to the United States.

It was the 20th hijacking of the year of a U.S. airliner to the Communist island.

The jet was hijacked 15 miles west of Riverside, Calif., at 7:20 p.m. EDT after taking off from Los Angeles, the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) said.

The pilot, Capt. Edward Nibur, 59, of Bernardsville, N.J., radioed asking for a routing to Havana.

United officials said there was no further contact with the pilot after his terse message.

"We knew it was hijacked then and we don't ask questions under those circumstances," said an FAA spokesman in Los Angeles.

The plane's route to the Communist island took it over Albuquerque, N.M.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Alexandria, La.; Tallahassee and Key West, Fla. A Trans World Airlines jet one hour out of Oakland, Calif., bound for New York was

Injuries Fatal To Jersey Man

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y. (AP) — A New Jersey man died in a hospital here early today of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Monday that took the life of his wife.

Nicholas Ziella, 83, of Union City, and his wife Maria, 77, were both passengers in a car which swerved off Rt. 302 near Circleville striking a utility pole.

Mrs. Ziella was killed in the crash.

Burroughs Unit Schedules Trip

HIGH FALLS — The John Burroughs Natural History Society will hold a field trip to the Great Swamp of New Jersey Saturday with members meeting at 10 a.m. at the crossroads in the village of New Vernon, N. J. near Morristown. Hal and Mary Flanders of the Summit (N. J.) Nature Club will lead the group.

Gannett Appointment

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The general executive for Gannett New Service in Rochester, James D. Head, is to be the new executive editor of the Hartford, Conn., Times, a Gannett Co. Inc. newspaper.

Stuart A. Dunham, Times editor, said Head would plan and develop new approaches to news coverage and coverage of special departments such as sports, women's pages and features.

Conner-Keyser Funeral Homes to Merge

Effective July 1, the W. N. Conner Funeral Home will merge with the Keyser Funeral Service Inc.

Since the State of New York has purchased the old Conner Building for historical purposes they will now use the two Keyser Chapels at Albany and Manor Avenues in Kingston and Broadway and Stout Avenue in Port Ewen. Among its other facilities there are two chapels with a combined seating for more than 180 persons. Keyser's Port Ewen facility includes a chapel, family room and Veteran's room. Both have adequate parking.

The Conner business was established by W. N. Conner in 1900 and operated by him until his death in 1951 at which time George F. Schroeder and Harry M. Barnhart, both employees of the Conner concern, purchased the business. The Keyser business was founded by his grandfather, William C. Kukuk, in 1916 and moved to their present Albany Avenue facility in 1960.

Mr. Keyser established the Port Ewen branch in 1964. The new alignment of the Conner Funeral Home will have graduate study in Funeral Service and a member of Rondout Lodge 343, F&AM, and a Shriner in Cypress Temple. A veteran in World War II, he served in the U. S. Navy in the South Pacific Theater and is a member of the American Legion and VFW. He married the former Mary E. Taylor. They have a son, Dennis Barnhart who is active in the insurance field in Poughkeepsie. Barnhart is a member of the Fair Street Reformed Church and is a past master of Kingston Lodge 10 F&AM and a Shriner in Cypress Temple. He is also a DeMolay Legion of Honor member.

Schroeder, president of the Conner Corporation, was a native of Saugerties where his family held farming interests. He is a 3rd and 4th degree Knight of Columbus Kingston Council 275, and is a member of St. John's America.

Church, West Hurley. He is married to the former Hannah E. Burns, RN and they have two sons, John H. Schroeder employed by IBM, Kingston Plant, is also a licensed funeral director. Robert Schroeder is an export sales manager for Shirley Fabric Co. of New York City. A resident of West Hurley, Schroeder is also Town of Hurley councilman and a former commissioner of the West Hurley Fire Company.

The combined staffs will in-

Bank Lists Promotion, Staff Addition

John W. Kelly, president of The State of New York National Bank, has announced the appointment of Robert A. Johnson as an assistant cashier of the bank.

Johnson will serve as a member of the marketing team directed by Francis H. Kolts, vice president of The State of New York National Bank. He will specialize in the customer services and new business development segments of bank marketing in the two-county area of Ulster and Dutchess. Regional economics, community relations, advertising and public information are also responsibilities of the marketing team.

Johnson since 1967 served as the business development and marketing director of the Fallkill National Bank and Trust Company in Poughkeepsie prior to its merger with The State of New York National Bank in 1968.

A native of Brooklyn, Johnson was a 1967 graduate of Marist College in Poughkeepsie. He is now earning a masters degree in business adminis-

RESCUE ATTEMPT FAILS — An Army helicopter tries in vain to rescue Archie Weatherford from the top of a smokestack at the DuPont plant in Old Hickory, Tenn. Weatherford and another workman, James Mason became stranded atop the structure when part of the ladder along the side collapsed. Mason descended earlier and after the futile attempt by the helicopter, Weatherford decided to risk the precarious footing of the ladder. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened mixed today in moderate turnover.

There was little in the news budget to inspire traders. Tight money conditions and uncertainty over the fate of the income tax surcharge again loomed as bearish influences. Still, the market is greatly oversold, and this now could be a vital plus factor.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI stock market indicator was off 0.30 per cent on 319 issues on the tape. There were 129 declines and 97 advances.

Steels were mixed, while motors gave ground. Oils were mixed. Airlines showed scattered strength.

U.S. Steel gave up 1/4, but Bethlehem rose 3/4. Among the motors, Ford and Chrysler fell 1/4 and 3/4, respectively. American Motors held unchanged. General Motors dipped 1/4.

Belco Petroleum climbed 1 1/2. Ashland 1/4. Atlantic Richfield dipped 1/4 and Standard of California 1/4. Natomas lost 3/4.

Quotations by Loeb, Rhoades & Company, member of the New York Stock Exchange, Kingston Branch, Kingston Plaza, Kingston, N. Y., Frank D. Hoornbeek, manager.

Possible Takeover Attempt Pushes the Shares Up

Q — What is making Warner Co. shares go up? — A.M.

A — Purchase recently of 52,000 shares on the open market by Haven Industries has pushed the shares to new high ground. Although this is only 6 per cent of the outstanding stock, it represents a far higher proportion of the smaller floating supply of shares; directors and officers hold 18 per cent of the 865,000 shares. As a result of the company's policy of acquiring its own stock, 309,529 shares are held in the treasury. Haven—trading about 6 — estimated net income for 1968 of $200,000 while Warner reported $2.1 million. Warner's sales of $25.1 million were two and a half times those of Haven, which states that the shares were bought as an investment.

Q — My mother, now in a nursing home, requires the highest possible income from her holdings. What changes should I make in her portfolio to achieve that goal? — S. M.

A — I would sell the following six issues: American Standard common and $4.75 preferred, Curtiss-Wright, Inter. Nickel, Sun Oil and Susquehanna Corp. The more than $9,000 from these sales can be used to purchase two recently issued high-grade utility bonds: New York Telephone 7 1/2% of 2009 and Public Service Electric & Gas 7 1/2% of 1999. Yield on these bonds average close to 7 1/2 per cent at recent quotes. Continue holding Columbia Gas, Duquesne Light, General Motors and Standard Oil of New Jersey yielding an average 5.2 per cent.

Q — As a long-range investment I have held Cutter Laboratories "A" for 5 years. The annual report does not raise my hopes greatly. Should the shares be retained? — R. W.

A — After a 50 per cent drop in the share price I would be loathe to advise sale of Cutter, particularly since some earnings recovery is anticipated this year. The company has just received NIH approval for use in treating hemophiliacs. Cutter concentrates operations in the areas of blood fractions, intravenous solutions, disposable hospital supplies, veterinary and allergy drugs and plastic products. Research and new product developments should continue to improve long-range outlook.

Kingston School District Consolidated Board of Education took cognizance last night of a resolution asking liberalization of its transportation plan for children in the enlarged city school district, but did not indicate that it contemplates any changes.

First Money Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Appropriations Committee Wednesday approved its first money bills of the year—$7.6 billion for the Agriculture Department—$500,000 less than was appropriated last year—and $2.2 billion for the Treasury and Post Office—$300,000 more than last year. The Agriculture appropriation included money for doubling the food stamp program but eliminated the House-passed limitation of $20,000 in subsidy payments to an individual farmer. There was no indication when the bills would be debated on the floor.

Double Birthday For Kingston Savings

KINGSTON opened its doors to business on the present site at 273 Wall Street in 1900. This anniversary of The Kingston Savings Bank and the first throw from its present location modeled and enlarged several times until in 1960 it was completely reconstructed. The lobby area was extensively remodeled in 1968, and the parking lot, with entrance from Crown Street, was expanded to its present capacity of over 50 vehicles, and landscaped in Colonial style.

Lincoln-Mercury Dealer is Cited

KINGSTON David Barnum of Kingston Lincoln-Mercury, Inc., Kingston, has been honored by the 6 for 5 Challenge Club of Lincoln-Mercury Division's New York District for outstanding sales achievement in May. The award is given to dealers who have improved their sales performance by 20 per cent in a given month this year compared to last year. Richard M. Elliott, district sales manager, said, "It is always a pleasure to recognize a superior sales effort on the part of our dealers."

The New York Lincoln-Mercury District includes dealerships in southeastern New York State, including New York City and Long Island, southwestern Connecticut and northern New Jersey.

Cigarette Smoking Warning To Get Tough Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite pleas from the tobacco industry and over the objection of its chairman, the Federal Trade Commission is going ahead with hearings on a tough, new cigarette smoking warning.

The FTC Wednesday rejected, by a 3-2 vote, a move to postpone the hearings until after Congress takes some action on the smoking-health controversy.

The vote paved the way for the FTC to open hearings next Tuesday with testimony from antismoking witnesses, led by Surgeon General William S. Stewart and his predecessor, Dr. Luther L. Terry.

The hearings will deal with a proposed trade regulation requiring all cigarette advertising—in newspapers and magazines as well as television and radio commercials—to state clearly and prominently:

"Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death resulting from cancer, coronary heart disease, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema and other diseases."

Supporting this claim Tuesday will be Stewart; Terry, now chairman of the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health; Dr. Charles F. Tate, associate professor of medicine at the University of Miami; Dr. Lewis E. January, representing the American Heart Association; Dr. Sol R. Baker, chairman of the American Cancer

Society's Committee on Tobacco and Cancer.

Dr. Robert H. Browning, National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association; Dr. Fred G. Bock, New York State Department of Health; and Bentley J. Bleem, president of Smoke Watchers International.

Purposely, the FTC set the beginning of the hearings as soon as possible after the expiration of the 1965 Cigarette Labeling Act.

That law, which expires Monday, required the relatively mild warning—"Caution: Cigarette Smoking May Be Dangerous to Your Health."

The House, with the support of tobacco state congressmen, already has passed a bill that proposes the label, "Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined that Cigarette Smoking is Dangerous to Your Health and May Cause Cancer and Other Diseases."

The bill would expire July 1, 1975, and would continue to bar the FTC and other regulatory agencies from taking actions beyond the package warning.

But it faces an uncertain fate in the Senate where Chairman

Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., has indicated his Senate Commerce Commission will conduct lengthy hearings.

H. Thomas Austern, chairman of the Tobacco Institute, had urged the FTC to delay action on grounds it would be too heavy a burden to prepare testimony for both the FTC and the Senate committee.

Last Dress Rehearsal For Landing on Moon

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Spaceport practicing in dummy spacecraft which simulate the feel of flying their Apollo command capsule and spindly-legged moon landing craft.

Wednesday afternoon they rehearsed the lunar descent and takeoff phases of their eight-day mission. Armstrong and Aldrin also climbed into their extra vehicular suits for a final fitting and then put on for a checkout the bulky backpacks they will wear when they step onto the moon.

Collins, who will pilot the command spacecraft in lunar orbit while his teammates are on the moon, went over the checklist of his duties.

While the astronauts kept up their rigorous training schedule, the Air Force launched a multiple warhead Minuteman 3 missile on a test flight aimed some 5,000 miles down the Atlantic missile range. The 60-foot missile bolted out of an underground silo at 4:30 p.m. EDT and streaked into a clear sky, leaving a white smoke trail curling in the breeze.

The Minuteman carried a dummy payload for a multiple independently targetable reentry vehicle (MIRV). The MIRV amounts to three warheads in one, each of which can be directed at a different target.

Upstate Stores Are Damaged

LeROY, N.Y. (UPI) — It took

firemen nearly eight hours before they finally brought under control a fire which damaged at least eight businesses Wednesday in the downtown section of this Genesee County community.

At least ten firefighters sustained minor injuries battling the blaze.

Authorities said the fire apparently started in the Rosenbloom Furniture Store and spread to the adjoining buildings. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Eight volunteer fire companies were called in to fight the blaze. An estimate of the damage was not determined.

College Role With Industry

Scientists Meet at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — Ten scientists holding managerial positions with industry met with President John J. Neumaier, State University College, New Paltz, recently to discuss the college's role in providing area industries with high level science education.

The industrial leaders are members of the college's advisory board for its "Frontiers in Chemistry" lecture series which this spring conducted a series on laser progress and research.

"There was general concurrence that new science-oriented companies tend to look outside New York State because of tax advantages offered elsewhere, but at the same time there was a strong feeling that they had to settle where graduate facilities for their scientists were handy," according to Dr. Angelos Patsis, professor of chemistry at New Paltz and executive director of the advisory committee.

Strong Factor
He said the members of the board generally agreed that availability of graduate studies was a strong factor in attracting scientific talent, and this desire for further study had to be taken into account in plans for expansion or new location.

The New Paltz college president has expressed the necessity for locating a graduate center at New Paltz which would meet industrial needs for science education as well as other graduate requirements for the Mid-Hudson region. He has pointed out the college's central location and existing facilities make a logical site for development as a graduate center, and that building a new graduate center in another location as suggested in a study made by a Colorado firm, would be impractical in light of costs and duplication.

'Up With People' Cast Due Today for Their Weekend Shows

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON — "Up With People" will arrive in Kingston late this afternoon to begin preparations for their three performances Friday, Saturday and Sunday night at the Kingston High School Auditorium.

A spokesman for the group told The Freeman Wednesday that enough homes have been obtained to house the 160 cast members for the four nights they will be in the area. Most of the homes are located in Kingston with some in the nearby communities of West Hurley, Stone Ridge, Ruby and Saugerties.

The caravan of "Up With People" buses will arrive at Kingston High School this afternoon at about 5 p. m. Home-owners will greet the young entertainers at the high school and provide dinner this evening at their homes.

13 Tons of Equipment
For the next three days the group will practice at the high school in the afternoon prior to their evening performances. Stage crews, who will probably be housed at Benedictine Hospital, will set up the 13 tons of sound, stage and lighting equipment during the morning, then practice with the group in the afternoon.

Tickets sales for the Saturday and Sunday performances at 8 p. m. have been good. There are still a number of student tickets available for the Friday night performance.

Tickets are now on sale at Abrams Music Store, 299 Wall Street, Rafalowsky's Clothing store, 71 Albany Avenue, and the Kingston Music Center, 658 Albany Avenue Extension. Tickets may also be purchased at the door the nights of the performances.

All proceeds for the three shows will go towards traveling expenses for the 160 "Up With People" cast members. Tickets are available at a nominal fee. "Up With People's" original style of music has been widely acclaimed throughout the world. Members of the group write and arrange their own songs without being abstract. In and dance numbers, and several have been recorded by the group's own record company. Their music is upbeat without being raucous and poignant world.

And the 160 "Up With People" travelers don't base their views on prejudice or word of mouth; their knowledge comes from meeting with thousands of families from countries in every part of the world, it is reported.

The weekend politics will be ignored and humanity emphasized when "Up With People" entertain on the stage at Kingston High School.

INTERNATIONAL CAST — Betty Pensoneau, an American Indian from Oklahoma, is one of the five Indians traveling with the international cast of Up With People. Betty will sing Up, Up With All People during the presentation in Kingston.

Overlook Radio Society Plans Emergency Exercise

The Overlook Radio Society of Ulster County is scheduled to take part in an annual emergency preparedness exercise known as "Field Day." The activity, held in the last week in June involves groups of radio amateurs throughout the United States and Canada.

Field Day will begin at 3 p. m.

Safe Driving Classes Slated June 30, July 7

SAUGERTIES

In an effort to meet the needs of area residents desiring the three hour safe-driving practices course, a third class will be offered Monday, June 30 and Monday, July 7 at 6 p. m. in the Main Street School. Participants will meet at the Washington Avenue entrance.

Those planning to attend who have not already done so, should make reservations with David S. Cunningham at the Administration Building, Hill Street, fee will be charged and it is required that all participants have a learner's permit when they report to the class session.

The three-hour safe driving practices instruction is now required of all persons before a road test will be administered.

MORE MORE MORE

For release Sun. June 22 or after on Saturday and will end at 6 p. m. Sunday. To simulate a "true emergency," no prior work on the emergency site is permitted until the exercise begins.

The society plans to staff three complete radio stations and will be operating from the top of Ohayo Mountain. The society expects 20 to 25 members to take part.

Last year, tents, emergency generators and associated electrical system were set up, antennas and other gear were erected and the first radio contact was established 21 minutes after the alert.

Nine hundred and ninety-three radio contacts were made with 42 states (including Hawaii), the Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, and nine of the 12 Canadian provinces.

While amateur radio is little understood by the public in general, says the society, this particular activity is "especially relevant to the public."

In 1964, during the Alaska earthquake, "by and large, the bulk of the emergency communications with the rest of the world, for almost five days, was handled by 'hams' operating under emergency conditions. The Overlook Radio Society, by this exercise," says the group, "is training its members in technical proficiency and in field experience to respond to any similar disaster in the Hudson Valley."

In Ellenville--Housing Debate

BY BRUCE KAUFMAN

ELLENVILLE
The Village of Ellenville, although small in size and quaint in appearance, in many ways is a microcosm of urban life, because it shares many of the problems usually identified with the cities.

One such problem is the availability of sufficient housing facilities for poor people and senior citizens in the community and the corresponding problems of over-crowding and deterioration of existing facilities.

According to Gordon Kent, chairman of the Ellenville Housing Authority, there are presently 80 families living in what may be termed sub-standard housing.

Many Below Standard

Kent says that as many as five and six families are currently living in old wooden houses originally constructed for single family occupancy. Many of these units in the renovated houses do not conform to state standards. They are reportedly over-run by roaches and sometimes rats, have faulty plumbing and heating units, and decaying plaster and wood work.

Kent says that because there are so few apartment available and no new construction is contemplated, especially for poor people, these people have become "trapped" by these horrible conditions.

In order to combat this problem, the Housing Authority formulated an ambitious plan calling for the construction of 100 units of low-cost public housing for senior citizens and poor people.

The plan, called Turnkey, is a federally subsidized program, which would authorize the authority to raise money through a bond, to build such a project, and then subsidize the repayment of the bond by supplementing the rents of the families selected for the project.

However, when the Turnkey proposal was presented to board, in early May it was received with considerable skepticism by the trustees and was subsequently whittled down to a 15-unit compromise plan.

The trustees did not deny the existence of the housing problem, but rather indicated that public housing was not the best approach because it was not consistent with the philosophy of the community and would possibly create more problems than it would solve.

Instead, they chose to push for more vigorous enforcement of the village's housing codes and a plan to rehabilitate the existing sub-standard housing. The proponents of the Turnkey project were disappointed with the board's judgment and some called it an "outright sell-out."

The central issue in the debate over public housing is not whether or not the problem exists, but rather whether a small village, like Ellenville can or should make the necessary commitment to confront this problem.

The consensus of the board was that this commitment should be made, but that it should not be translated into public housing.

Proponents of public housing, such as the Housing Authority and representatives of the poor disagree. Their feeling is that public housing is the answer because other approaches have failed in the past and there is little indication that they will succeed now.

According to Ellenville Village Manager, Paul Boucher, the board feels that public housing is not consistent with the philosophy of the community.

Boucher points out that Ellenville is essentially a community of privately owned homes and he feels that families living in a housing project would develop a "renters mentality" which does not promote "pride or dignity."

However, David Kramer, vice-chairman of the Housing Authority, believes that exactly the opposite will happen.

"These people who are presently living in such horrible conditions would consider it an honor to live in a neat row of town houses with landscaping and off street parking and such a project would become the show place of Ellenville," Kramer says.

Trustee DeWitt Clinton, who has consistently opposed any plan for public housing, feels that the question is not one for the village, but rather for the free enterprise system and the landlords.

"I don't think that the village should be in the housing business," Clinton says, "and Big Brother in the White House, Big Brother in the governor's mansion and the village should not be landlords."

However, those in favor of public housing do not share Clinton's faith in the efficacy of the free enterprise system regarding the issue of housing, because there has been very little development in recent years and the likelihood of private development of low-cost housing is virtually non-existent.

Nor do they place great trust in the fair-mindedness of the landlords.

Others Waiting

One resident, who along with his family, lives in what was once a one-family house, with five other families told The Freeman that when he recently directed a complaint to the landlord, he was told that if he did not like his living arrangements he could move because 10 other families were waiting to move in.

Another issue which is central in the debate on public housing is the possible financial problems which can be caused by the project.

Boucher points out that a 100-unit project would necessitate an expansion of services by the community, particularly regarding schools, and that since the project would be largely tax exempt this would put a heavy strain on the village's narrow tax base.

However, Kramer points out that since there is little likelihood that any private developers will build such a project the village stands to gain revenues since a portion of rents collected will be set aside "in lieu of taxes" for local government.

Moreover, Kramer stresses that since the subsidy for the proposed Turnkey project will be derived entirely from the federal government, the village will assume no increased financial burden.

"I think it would be very tragic, particularly to the people who are living in such appalling conditions, if we lost the opportunity to take advantage of this program," Kramer says.

Still another issue is the question of how the taxpayers in Ellenville feel about public housing.

Ellenville Mayor, Robert Dowling, believes that the general feeling of the people is against public housing. "I'm elected by the majority," Dowling says, "and must approach this question the way the majority thinks."

Attitudes Could Change

While conceding that there is considerable negative feeling about public housing in the community, Housing Authority Kent says that when the taxpayers are made aware of the programs their attitudes usually change.

Realizing this, Kent is presently in the process of organizing a liaison committee between village government and the community in order to disseminate information about Turnkey.

While the board is reluctant to go into public housing they are proceeding to move in other areas such as enforcement of the building codes and rehabilitation of substandard housing.

Boucher says that more aggressive enforcement of the codes might somewhat alleviate the problem.

"Many of the landlords have not realized their responsibility to those who bring income to them," Boucher says. "However, there must also be a reasonableness on the part of the tenants."

The board has also recently adopted a program which guarantees landlords federally insured loans if they will use it to rehabilitate their properties.

Unfortunately, though almost everyone agrees that this will not be successful, because few landlords have indicated an interest in the program since they can make greater incomes by maintaining rentals in the existing facilities.

However, the proponents of Turnkey, particularly the poor families, presently living in sub-standard housing, do not feel that the board's approach will get to the heart of the problem, which is the unavailability of low-cost housing in Ellenville.

Town of Olive Lists Program for Recreation

WEST SHOKAN
The Town of Olive Recreation Program will be held from July 7 to Aug. 22, it was announced this week. Playground activities include arts and crafts, baseball, softball, kickball, archery, volleyball, horseshoes, basketball and other activities.

Swimming instruction will be given at the West Shokan Pool each day of the season from 9 a. m. until 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p. m. The pool has been developed into groups with Samsonville, and West Shokan children swimming in the morning and Shokan, Boiceville and Olivebridge area children swimming in the afternoon.

The pool is heated and the schedule will rotate every two weeks. Baseball and softball competition will be held with other recreation groups, and bus trips and weekly movies will also be featured.

Children must have had one year of regular school to participate. They should come prepared with proper clothing and lunches. A pavilion has been provided for inclement weather.

Bus trips will leave daily for the area at 8:20 a. m. and will begin the return trip at 4 p. m.

Middletown Bus Leaves Sunday

Rhinecliff's Levi Morton -- Horatio Alger Story

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK
The late 19th and early 20th century millionaires used the Hudson River Valley as their playground. Names like Astor, Vanderbilt and Roosevelt attest to that.

A bust of another financial and political giant of those times sits in the Rhinebeck Town Hall. The inscription reads, "Levi Parsons Morton, 1824-1920, Member of Congress, Minister to France, Governor of New York, Vice-President of United States."

Other Reminders

Other reminders of this distinguished gentleman's history are embodied in the Morton Memorial Library in Rhinecliff and Ellerslie, the beautiful 1,000 acre estate at which he spent many happy years.

The library was his last philanthropic gesture, built shortly before his wife died in 1918. It was a symbol of his lifelong devotion to popular education, and is continued today through a trust fund.

Ellerslie is now a part of Cardinal Farley Military Academy in Rhinecliff. The land had been, 200 years before Morton acquired it, part of the Beekman grant. He tore down the old colonial house and replaced it with a larger one of Elizabethan timber and stucco, designed by one of the time's leading architects, Richard Hunt.

Morton's life was a stunning Horatio Alger story, and was used by millions of parents admonishing their children as an excellent example of thrift and hard work in the New England tradition.

It began in the austere rigors of small towns in Vermont and Massachusetts at a time when the devil was believed to lurk behind every bush. With a preacher for a father, young Levi became strongly indoctrinated in Calvinism when still a child.

Couldn't Afford College

Morton's education was over when he was 14 because he simply couldn't afford to go to college. Thus, his first full time job was as a clerk in a grocery store in Wichenenden, Mass., for the fabulous sum of $50 a year plus living expenses.

It was during this period that Morton summed up his attitude toward life by saying, "I am always happiest when I work the hardest."

Never content to stay at a job past the time he could learn anything from it, Levi jumped to Hanover, N. H., and was an independent businessman at the age of 21. He cornered the wholesale market, and then took an opportunity with the largest business in Boston.

He rose to prominence quickly, working 12 and 14 hour days and often pushing his help just as hard.

Morton's legend in finance began in 1863 when he joined several others in commercial banking. He rose quickly in this endeavor also and became renowned as an international banker. One of his assistants during this rise was none other than J. Pierpont Morgan.

Special

The event that made Morton's name heard on the continent was called the "Alabama Case." It was a claim by the United States that England had unfairly come to the aid of the South during the Civil War, bringing in supplies on the "Alabama." Through skillful negotiations by Morton, England finally had to pay more than $15 million in reparations. Although Levi was wealthy and well-known in his field, he didn't enter politics until the age of 52.

Morton had been a staunch Republican from the time the Whig Party folded, believing in never exceeding one's debt limit. During Reconstruction Days he was persuaded to become a candidate for the 11th district in New York.

Reaction To Soviet Miniskirt

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian girls who show their legs in the streets run a daily gauntlet of jeering babushkas—grandmothers—but one outraged Moscowite still claims he is "pursued everywhere by miniskirts."

The Soviet version of the miniskirt is modest compared to London or New York. Few Russian girls dare display any thigh, and the micromini is reserved almost exclusively for girls under three.

But the Moscow miniskirt war has reached new heights, with heated debate in the local press.

"Russian girls have reached the limit," said one letter in Literary Gazette. The paper said it was concealing the writer's identity "for obvious reasons."

Demanding that miniskirts be "restricted and forbidden," the writer continued: "There is no elegance in displaying kneecaps and the whole naked thigh. Wherever people sit in public places, there is no way to shield the eyes."

"In the bus, in the park, in the theater, on the streets, in the squares, at sea and on land—everywhere one is pursued by the mini."

The man claimed "emotions worked up in normal men over miniskirts are harmful." He did not elaborate.

Literary Gazette writer A. Raskin replied. "Let's talk about this calmly, man to man, father to father... grandfather to grandfather." Raskin said he is old and miniskirts don't appeal to him personally, but he stressed women should be free to choose whatever fashions they desire.

Raskin's only word of restraint: Women who wear miniskirts look like "thousands of other women," thus losing their individuality. This, he said, is a "serious loss for a woman."

Foreign girls who come to Moscow in miniskirts are frowned upon less than their Russian sisters. The Soviets seem to feel foreigners are capable of anything.

Kingston Gets $257,400 in Per Capita Aid

ALBANY

The State Department of Audit and Control announced this week the distribution of special per capita aid to cities including $257,400.22 for Kingston, out of a total $94,794,026.19.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt said the aid is at the rate of $9.26 per capita in addition to other per capita aid, but added that the amount was reduced by 5 per cent as a result of action by the 1969 Legislature.

Last Filing Date

August 15 is the last date for filing applications for the open competitive examination for a law stenographer position in the Ulster County District Attorney's office here. Salary range for the post is from $4,265 to $5,485, according to the county's Civil Service Commission.

tempts, he was elected to the 11th in 1878 after a vigorous stand against the Greenback Party, which advocated printing up large quantities of paper money with no gold backing. The Free Silver movement several years later was also vigorously opposed by Morton.

"When Morton entered Congress, two continents had become familiar with his name and regarded it as a synonym of integrity," said Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois.

Once in Congress, the middle-aged freshman Representative became concerned with the thousands of immigrants pouring into the country without anything of value. Immigration laws barring criminals, legally insane, and diseased persons and limiting the amount of influx were largely sponsored by Morton.

Morton's immense reputation for integrity was fortified when Gen. Garfield was running for the presidency. Upon being selected, Garfield asked that Morton be his running mate, but Levi refused because he had supported Gen. Grant in the primaries.

Could Have Been President

Garfield lasted but seven months in office before dying and Vice-President Chester Arthur succeeded him. If Morton had accepted the vice-presidency, he would have been a president.

In June of 1881, the title of "Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to France" was bestowed upon the Rhinecliff dweller, and after serving a tour of duty in France Morton's last official duty in that respect was officiating at the presentation of the Statue of Liberty to the United States.

Levi was chosen as running mate with Benjamin Harrison in 1889, and served his term in the second spot in the nation. Immediately upon finishing his term, he ran for the New York State governorship in 1895 at the age of 70 and served a distinguished term in that office.

He did no active campaigning for governor, and listed his total expenses as only $19,790. Included in this fund was $500 to J. C. McCarthy, chairman of the Rhinebeck Town Committee; and $390 for postage, advertising and contributions to local fire companies of Dutchess County.

Two main contributions to New York State during his term as governor were "the completest embodiment of the Civil Service Reform idea so far attempted in any state", according to the New York Evening Post, and the formation of Greater New York City from the five separate and distinct boroughs.

After Morton's recovery from grave illness in 1913 at the age of 89, a newspaper editorial eulogized him in print.

A New York Sun editorial said: "There is no man of vast wealth living in this community today who has used the means at his command more wisely or beneficially than he."

After his second wife of 45 years died in 1918, Anna Livingston Reade of Poughkeepsie, Morton made no more public appearances, but stayed at Ellerslie and enjoyed his retirement.

It had become a custom during the last years of his life for school children of Rhinecliff to visit Morton at his sumptuous home on every birthday.

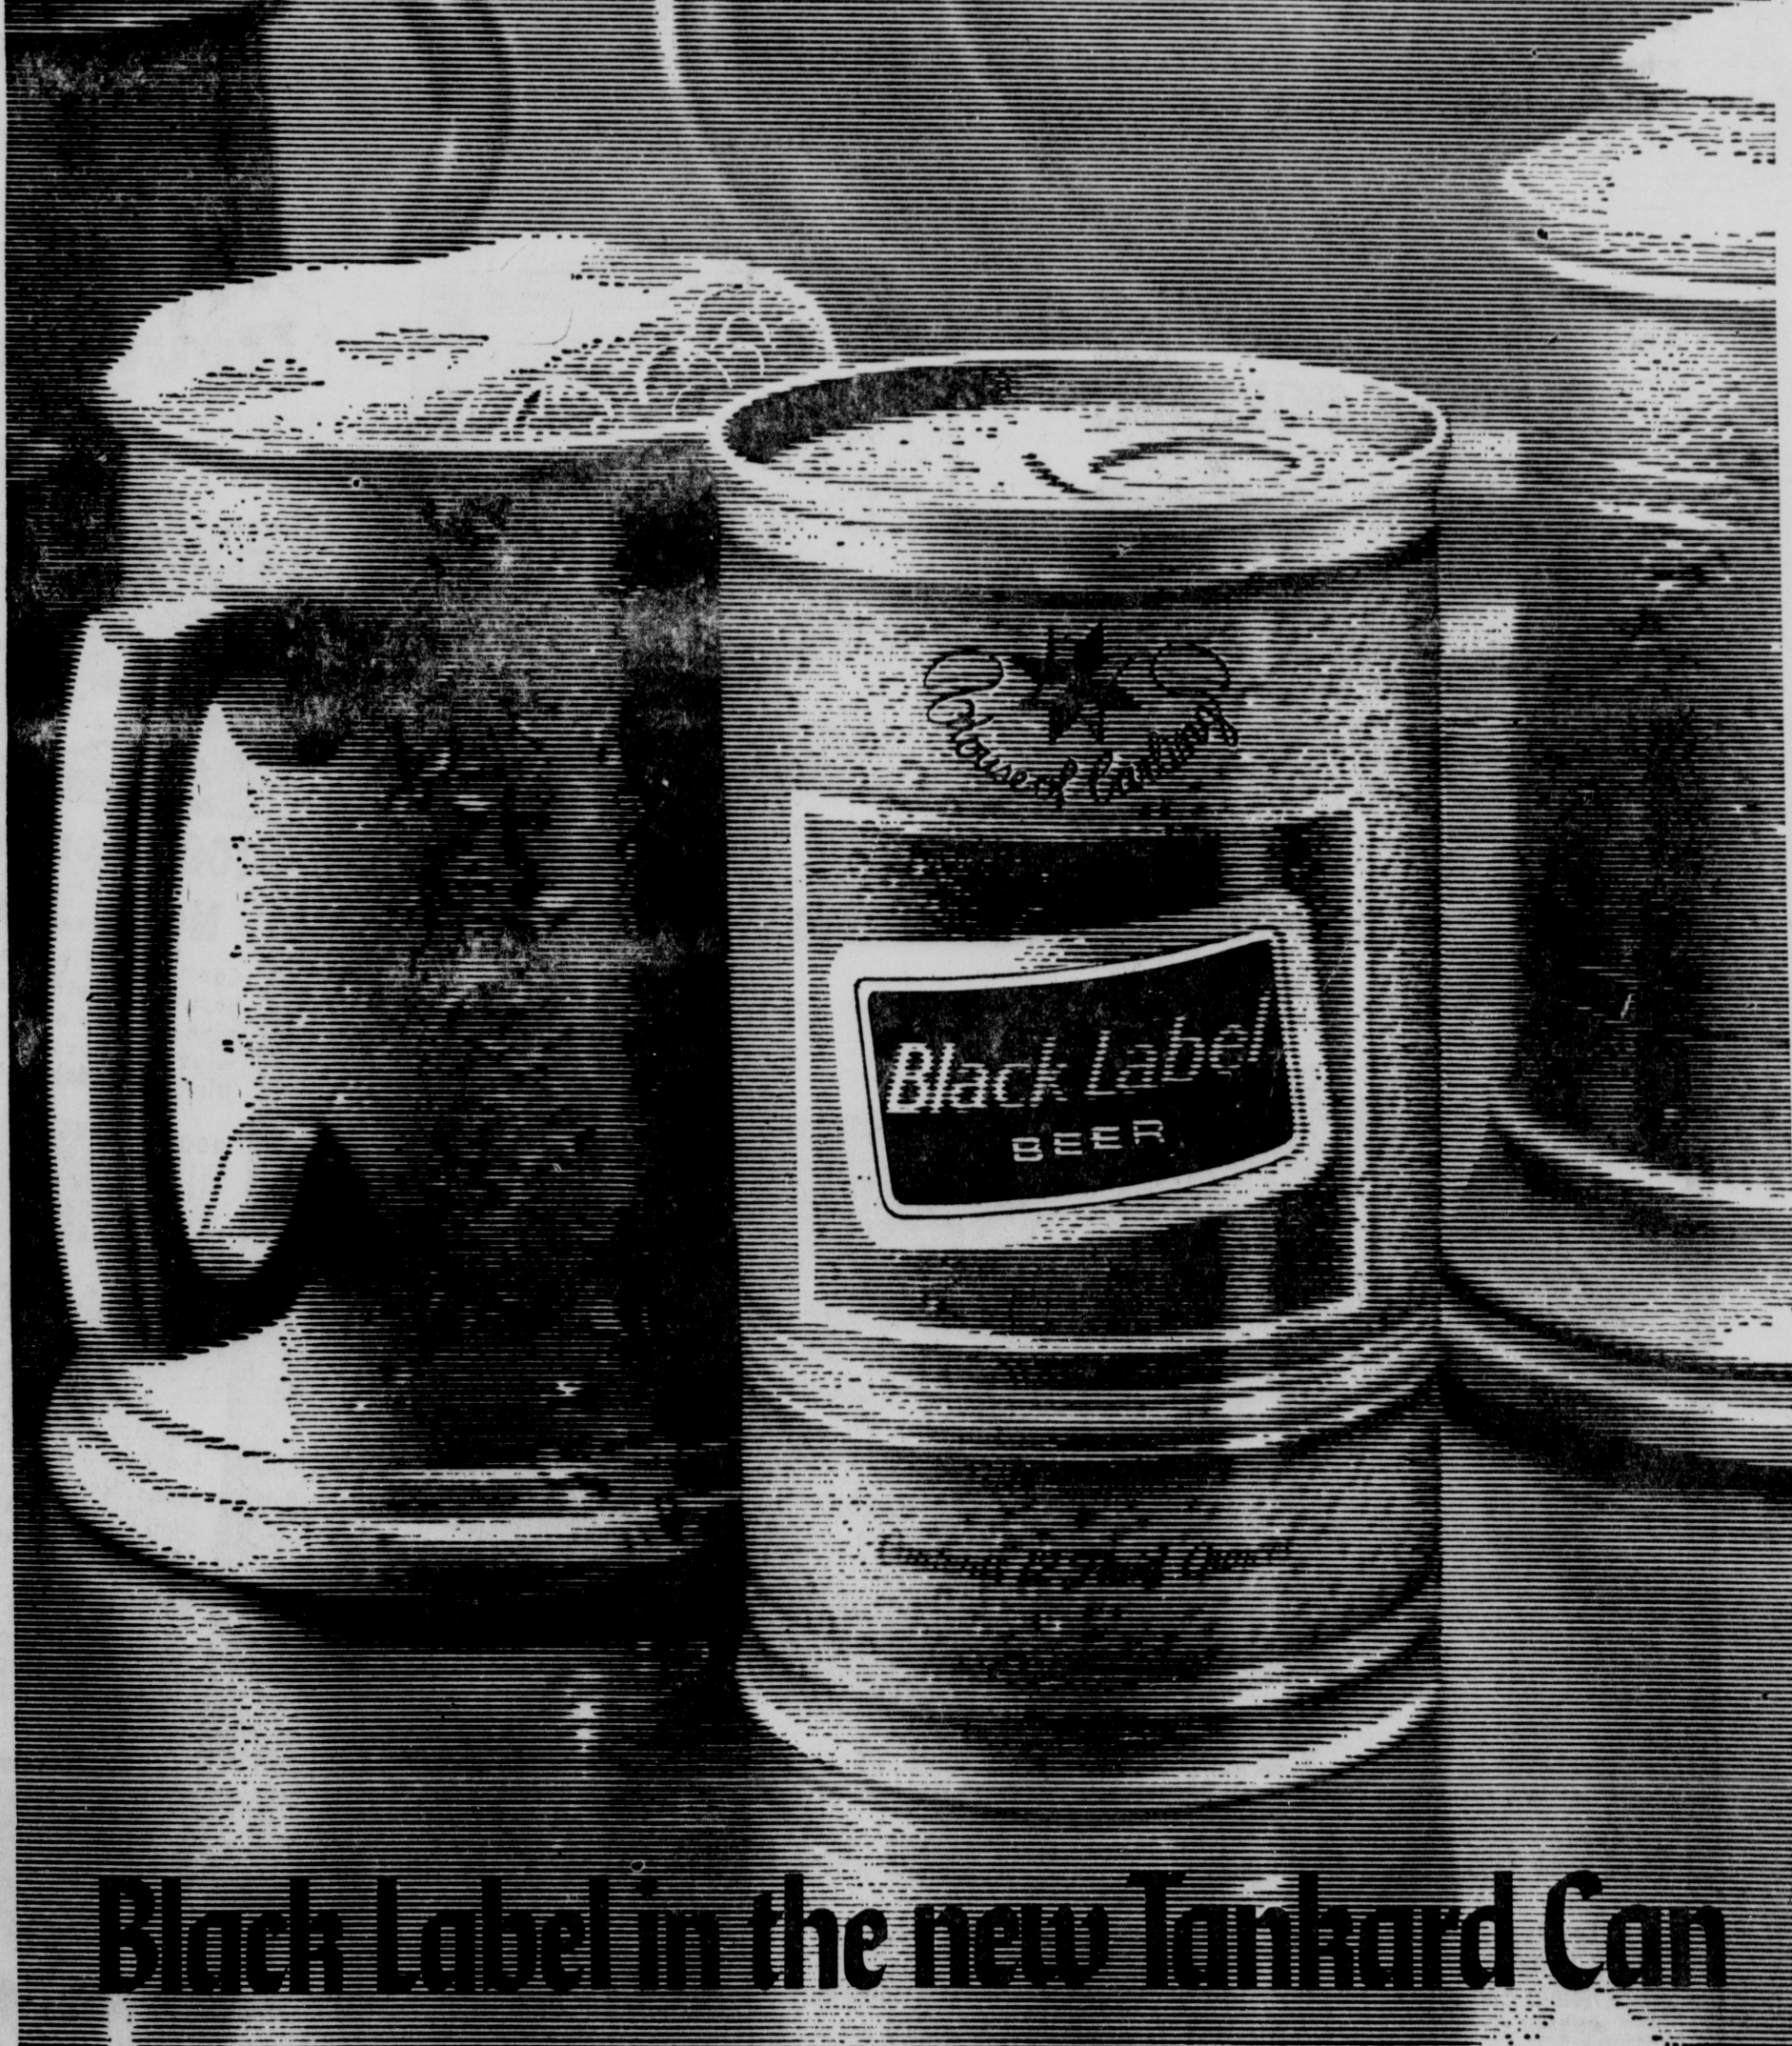

On his 96th birthday the children came and sang their songs, and were treated to some goodies and kind words from the tired old man as usual.

At 8:30 that evening he died in his study. His finances, legislation, and imprint upon America continue.

Miss Daphne Anne Jadoff Exchanges Vows With M.D. Berish; The Rev. Kenneth Jadoff, Brother of Bride, Officiated

St. Catherine Laboure Church, Lake Katrine, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Daphne Anne Jadoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jadoff of 62 Guyton Street, Kingston, and Michael Dennis Berish, North Madison Avenue, Anderson, Ind., son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Berish of Poughkeepsie, on Saturday, June 21.

The Rev. Kenneth G. Jadoff, brother of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial Mass. Mrs. Eleanor Sweeney, organist and soloist, provided traditional wedding selections. Sprays of apple blossoms decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a white linen A-line, floor length gown, fashioned with an empire waistline and accented with applied flowers scattered throughout the gown which also featured an at-viel with floral border was attached to a wreath of multi-colored fresh flowers and she carried a nosegay bouquet of multi-colored assorted flowers.

Mrs. Daniel J. Devine of Lawton, Okla. serves as matron of honor. She wore a shoking pink, floor length A-line gown. Her white straw picture hat was accented with pink flowers and she carried a spray of pink apple blossoms.

Attendants were Miss Mary Ellen Berish, sister of bridegroom, Riverdale; Miss Marilyn Prendergast, Port Ewen; Miss Kathleen York, Riverdale; Mrs. Charles F. Dykas, Alexandria, Va. Miss Margaret Berish of Poughkeepsie, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. They wore white cotton dotted Swiss gowns, styled with fitted bodices, long fitted sleeves with double rows of ruffles and pink sashes at the waist. Their white straw picture hats were accented with pink flowers and they carried sprays of pink apple blossoms.

Charles F. Dykas of Alexandria, Va. was best man. Ushers were Gerard Glibride, John McHugh, both of Poughkeepsie; Peter O'Connor, Dennis Perry and David Clark, all of Pittsburgh, Pa.

After the wedding a reception for 110 guests was held at Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston.

For her wedding trip to Atlantic City, the bride chose a coral knit dress and matching coat with black patent leather accessories.

The bride, a graduate of Academy of St. Ursula and College of Mt. St. Vincent, Riverdale, will teach at St. Ambrose School, Anderson, Ind.

Her husband, an alumnus of Our Lady of Lourdes High School, Poughkeepsie, and University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa., is employed by Delco-Remy, a division of General Motors, in Anderson, Ind.

The couple will reside at Madison Ridge Apartments, 1627 North Madison Avenue, Apt. B-6, Anderson, Ind.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I wanted to fix an arrangement of artificial flowers on my patio picnic table. In order to keep the wind from blowing them over, here's what I did.

I stuck the wire stems through bricks (the kind with mortar holes) and bent them so they wouldn't come out. Then set the bricks in a basket. The arrangement won't blow over even in a strong wind.

Mrs. J. D.

Dear Heloise:

I inherited an old wardrobe chest from a relative last year that was a beautiful piece of furniture, but I really had no use for it—or so I thought.

I had always wanted extra storage space in my dining room so I decided to use this chest.

Well, I just polished it up real well and got my husband to put small shelves in the side that had been used to hang clothes.

Then in the upper small side I stored tall vases and candlesticks. The drawers below held napkins, candle, napkin rings, playing cards, and scorepads.

On the shelves I put glasses, small snack trays and pitchers.

It really is a conversation piece anytime anyone sees it. And oh, so handy.

Dear Heloise:

When an over-blouse is so sheer that the skirt underneath shows through, I take a pinkish sheers and cut off the top of an old slip to wear under the blouse.

The bottom part of the slip is not wasted because I use it to line the deep lace hem of a newer slip.

Lace hems aren't shadow-proof, so this problem is also solved.

Loungewear for Evening

More and more, loungewear is being worn as evening wear. If you'd love to show off that lovely lounging culotte but aren't quite sure of the reaction you'll elicit, relax. You'll be a wow.

Romantic Look

Part of the romantic look in feminine fashions is old-fashioned smocking, now done by machine instead of by hand. The approved technique for keeping this decoration indented after laundering is to hold the two ends of the smocked section and snap it taut. The "dimples" will leap neatly into place.

Vows Exchanged at Double Ring Ceremony

St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, was the setting of the wedding of Miss Lynn Katherine Greiner, daughter of Mrs. Howard Greiner, 170 Doris Street, Port Ewen, and the late Howard Greiner, and Robert Harry Lengyel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Lengyel, Stone Ridge, on Saturday, June 21.

The Rev. Robert D. Saccoman officiated at the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial Mass. Miss Kathy Kelly accompanied Mrs. James Sweeney who sang traditional wedding selections. Vases of white gladioli and chrysanthemums accented with western fern and palms decorated the altar, and floral arrangements of white carnations and pompons marked the family pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Howard William Greiner. She wore a full-length A-line skimmer gown of silk organza peau de soie. The front panel and short sleeves were appliqued with embroidered Venice lace and the attached wattleau chapel-length train was framed in the same lace. Her white floral bonnet, which was accented with trailing stephanotis, was attached to three tiers of silk illusion elbow-length veiling and she carried a cascade of orchids, gypsolia and stephanotis.

Miss Mary Hargrove of Kingston, was maid of honor. Attendants were the Miss Barbara Bushnell, cousin of the bride, Stone Ridge; Alice Valentine, Hurley; Peggy Barton, Port Ewen; and Mrs. Brent Webber, sister of the bridegroom, Stone Ridge. They wore aqua, A-line floor-length gowns of silk shantung, accented with double pleats at the back of the gowns. Their double circular veils were attached to aqua mimosas, and they carried fireside baskets of rainbow colored daisies.

Brent Webber, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Stone Ridge, served as best man. Ushers were Gary Greiner, brother of the bride, Port Ewen; Thomas Tegler, High Falls; Gary Riso, Flushing; and Frank Pizzuro, Flushing.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

For her wedding journey to the Poconos, Pennsylvania, the bride wore a white linen dress with a black and white print coat and a white orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Lengyel will reside in Kingston.

Area Couples' Weddings Announced Recently to The Freeman

MRS. DUDLEY E. SPORE

Miss Martha Ann Eddy of RD 6, Box 431 C. Kingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark S. Eddy of Scenectady, became the bride of Dudley E. Spore of 8001 Fulton, Apt. 40, Houston, Tex., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Spore of San Leandro, Calif. on Saturday, June 21, at St. James United Methodist Church, Kingston.

The Rev. Harry Robinson officiated at the ceremony. Traditional wedding selections were provided.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of peau de soie and Chantilly lace, featuring a chapel train. A fingertip length veil served as her headpiece and she carried a bouquet of white roses, carnations, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Susan Eddy, sister of the bride, Scenectady, was maid of honor. Miss Nancy Eddy and Miss Margaret Eddy, both sisters of the bride from Scenectady, served as bridesmaid and junior bridesmaid, respectively. They wore full length gowns of silk cashmere with the honor attendant in pastel green and the bridesmaid and junior bridesmaid in pink and yellow, respectively. Matching crowns served as their headpieces and they carried baskets of seasonal flowers.

Victor Nippert was best man. Ushers were Scott Eddy and William Yates.

After the wedding a reception was held at the church hall.

The bride was awarded a BS in Music Education from State University at Fredonia. She is employed as a music teacher by Kingston Consolidated Schools.

Her husband received his BA degree in Music from Sacramento State College in California. He is employed by IBM as a customer engineer.

Miss Sharon Teri Pekarsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pkarsky, 328 Hurley Avenue, Kingston, became the bride of Jeffrey Allen Trest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Trest, 179 Hurley Avenue, Kingston, on Sunday, June 22 at Ahavath Israel Temple.

Rabbi Harry Schectman officiated at the double ring ceremony. Sid Doman sang traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of blue and yellow daisies decorated the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She selected an A-line gown of organza posed over bridal taffeta. Motifs of Swiss lace trimmed the bodice and edged the full-length mantilla.

Miss Nadine Mandell, brooklyn, served as maid of honor and Mrs. Hermine Leavitt, sister of the bride, Sharon, Massachusetts, was matron of honor. They wore short blue frocks with matching stylized headpieces.

Paul Pasternack, Cherry Hill, N.J., was best man. Ushers were Lloyd Nurick, Delmar; Daniel Nurick, New Rochelle; Joel Aronchick, Newburgh, all cousins of the bride; and Gidon Stern, Middle Village.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception for approximately 100 guests was held at Ahavath Israel.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and State University College at Cortland, where she was a member of Alpha Delta sorority. She is now working towards her master's degree at State University College at New Paltz. During the past year she was a teacher at Spring Valley.

Her husband is an alumnus of Kingston High School and was graduated this June from New York University where he received a Bachelor of Chemical Engineering degree. He is employed by Xerox Corporation, Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. Trest will reside at Rochester when they return from their wedding journey to Paradise Island, Nassau.

MRS. JEFFREY ALLEN TREST

Art Students League Friday Forum Will Begin Tomorrow at Noon

The Art Students League Summer School in Woodstock has announced the start of its schedule of the 1969 Friday Noon Forum. The Forum, which is open to the public at no charge, presents an imposing array of eminent guest artists, performers, writers and critics who will be on hand each Friday at noon for informal discussions, demonstrations, recitals, questioning, and even dramatic events.

The present list of guests for this summer's FORUM includes: Joseph Morgenstern, Movies Editor for Newsweek; Billy Faier, folksinger and lightbox artist; Lawrence Campbell, critic for Art News; Happy Traum, folksinger; Ronald Denitto, painter; and Grace Warner, sculptress; Harold Baldrige, theatre director and set designer; Stephen Robin, designer-craftsman.

The first Forum for this summer will be held this Friday at noon, and will focus essentially on various issues — whatever their nature — considered essential and relevant by students and younger artists. Frances Greenberg, Susan Kulbacki, and Stuart Krisel will be the three panelists participating in and leading the discussion is expected to be wide-ranging, and participation by those in attendance is invited.

The Forum was established by the late renowned artist Arnold Blanch, who taught at the League for many years, and will continue to take place just outside Studio 2.

The Art Students League Summer School in Woodstock is about a mile from the Village Green, on Route 212 in the direction of Saugerties, and has adequate parking space for visitors.

Wedding Told

Miss Catherine Elizabeth Northcutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Northcutt of 210 West O'Reilly Street, Kingston, exchanged nuptial vows with Robert Ernest Santero, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Santero of Monterey, Calif. and Staten Island, on May 28 in the Chapel at Lake Tahoe, Nev.

The bride wore a white A-line dress with white accessories and carried a bouquet of daisies and purple mountain ivy. The altar was decorated with white roses and fern.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and attended Ulster County Community College. She is employed at the Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel, Calif., where she also does art work.

Her husband, an alumnus of Monterey High School, attended Monterey Peninsula College, Monterey, and served with the U.S. Army in Vietnam. He acted and produced in theatre production while in service and with theatre groups in Carmel. He is employed at Highlands Inn, Carmel, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Santero will reside at Monterey, Calif.

Miss Kathleen Ann Twomey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis Twomey of Niagara Falls, exchanged nuptial vows with Edward Alan Frankle of Lanham, Md., son of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Frankle of West Shokan, Saturday, June 21, at St. Teresa of the Infant Jesus Church, Niagara Falls.

The Rev. John Smith officiated at the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial Mass. Arrangements of white flowers decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza, fashioned with funnel sleeves, a scooped neckline, empire bodice and dome skirt. The sleeves were outlined in peau d'ange lace and the gown was trimmed with matching lace, accented with a lace border at the hemline. cathedral length mantilla of matching peau d'ange lace. She wore her grandmother's pearls and carried a bouquet of white butterfly roses, stephanotis and gypsophylla.

Miss Carol Lucik of Detroit, Mich. was maid of honor. She wore a sleeveless gown of lime green striped cotton ottoman styled with an empire bodice, and a white straw picture hat softened with green streamers. She carried a white basket of assorted multi-colored flowers. Mrs. William C. Frankle of Greenbelt, Md. was matron of honor.

Attendants were Mrs. William Clark Jr. of Oxon Hill, Md.; Miss Marcia DeSantis, Niagara Falls; Miss Mary Frances Twomey, sister of the bride, Niagara Falls, who served as junior bridesmaid. Their gowns and headpieces were similar to those of the honor attendants.

Exchanging of Regalias Held By Colonial Rebekah Lodge

COLONIAL REBEKAHS — Colonial Rebekah Lodge No. 48 held its regular meeting Monday, June 23, at which time Dora Mittelstaidt, district deputy president of Vineyard Rebekah Lodge No. 572, Highland, second from right, was installed. Principals who attended the event included (L-R) Mathilda Hann, past district marshal; Phoebe (Peggy) VanWagenen who conducted the impressive ceremony, the exchanging of regalias; and Velma Clearwater, secretary, Ulster District. Other officers include Helen Schaffer, marshal; Bertha Bragg, warden; Marion Terpening, secretary; Minnie Pape, treasurer; Lena Dirk, chaplain; Verlie Jennings, inside guardian; Gertrude Marx, outside guardian; and Myra VanDermark, musician. A report was given by Anna Minkler of Queen Ulster No. 34 on the Rebekah Assembly session which she attended as delegate for Colonial Lodge. Visitors from many lodges in Ulster District were present at the ceremony. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Court Santa Maria No. 164 Installs New Officers

Court Santa Maria No. 164, Catholic Daughters of America, held installation of officers at their June meeting. Those elected for the new term include Catherine Haines, grand regent; Emily Spada, vice grand regent; Elizabeth McDonough, prophetess; Marie Dobkins, financial secretary; Helen Beaver, historian; Lucille Nau, treasurer; Helen Van Steenburgh, monitor; Betty Ligouri, sentinel; Rose Turk, lecturer; Helen Evans, organist; Josephine Qualtere and Emma Sangaline, trustees.

Officers were installed by Mrs. Pauline Losso, district deputy, in a colorful, impressive ceremony. Mrs. Catherine Sweeney was organist in the absence of Helen Evans.

ans The Rev. John Farley, chaplain, congratulated the officers and urged members to continue to foster their motto, Unity and Charity.

The 57th annual banquet will be held September 25 at a time to be announced.

Emma Sangaline, Mary DuBois and Rose Turk served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held September 11 at the Knights of Columbus hall.

Concert Scheduled at Woodstock For Hudson River Sloop Restoration

A concert will be given in the Woodstock Playhouse on Monday, June 30 at 8:30 p.m. to help raise money to pay for the Hudson River sloop Restoration. The Hudson River sloop Clearwater has been built by the Sloop Restoration group, headed by Pete Seeger, to act as a traveling museum of the Hudson River and to dramatize the pollution of our river by harking back to the days when the then clear and clean waters were sailed by hundreds of such sloops.

Guest artists at the benefit concert will include Billy Faiers, Happy and Art Traum, Billy Batson, Sonia Malkine, and Frank Fletcher; Edgar Leaycraft, commentator on historical aspects. Alex Osina will act as master of ceremonies.

The Hudson River sloop is one of the few specialized types of sailing craft developed to meet particular local sailing conditions. With her tall mast set forward, her great mainsail, centerboard and long tiller, the Hudson River sloop was a highly maneuverable, speedy and seaworthy craft. She had to be to sail safely in the treacherous winds funnelled along the river by the high palisades and hills on either side.

Such vessels were frequently used at sea. The first vessel to sail from the newly formed United States to China and back after the American Revolution was a Hudson River sloop. Several of them were used as privateers during the War of 1812.

Apparently developed from the Dutch sloop, the design was refined to meet the conditions of the Hudson until a vessel much like the Clearwater evolved which was able to compete with steamships and barge tows until almost 1900.

These sloops formed the main means of transportation for all goods and people on the Hudson River until the Civil War. They brought the sand from New Jersey which landed at Glasco to enable the glass factories in Woodstock to operate from 1810 to 1854. They carried the South American hides from New York to river ports for the various tanneries scattered throughout the Catskills, and carried back the tanned leather. Later they carried much of the Catskill Mountain bluestone to New York where it was used for sidewalks and curbs.

In 1814, a new idea in transportation was announced — fixed times of departure for sloops sailing between Albany and New York. Very quickly three such lines were in operation because of the convenience and lowered capital requirements for trade resulting from set sailing times. This idea, spawned on the Hudson by our sloops, was applied in 1818 to the North Atlantic, created the packet ships and revolutionized commerce and industry in the United States by reducing the time during which money was tied up in international commerce. The freeing of capital sparked the economic boom of the United States until the Civil War.

The Clearwater not only represents an effort to clean up streams and rivers, but she is a modern model of one of the most highly refined, specialized sailing craft ever developed, one which was common to Hudson River waters as recently as 1900, but which has now completely disappeared.

Attend the concert, hear beautiful music and help return at least one sloop to the Hudson River. (Edgar C. Leaycraft, Woodstock Town Historian)

Gonzalez, Pasarell Set Wimbledon Record

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Pancho Gonzalez wrote tennis history on Wimbledon's center court Wednesday.

The bronzed, graying 41-year-old legend came from two sets behind to win a 112-game match over his onetime pupil Charles Pasarell 22-24, 1-6, 16-14, 6-3, 11-9. He took three salt tablets and drank an orange soda while doing it.

In a first round match that even the old-timers were calling one of the greatest in tennis history, Pancho summoned all his stamina and strength to outlast the 25-year-old Puerto Rican.

The second full day at the $80,000 All-England Tennis Championships nearly saw two major upsets when defending champion Rod Laver and U.S. Open champion Arthur Ashe had to go to five sets, after losing the first two, to score second round wins.

Billie Jean King Wins
Mrs. Billie Jean King, who has won three straight titles at Wimbledon, and Nancy Richey, another strong American contender, easily won their matches.

Billie Jean won seven straight games in a 6-2, 6-1 second round win over Vera Vukovich of South Africa. Miss Richey had scarcely more than a workout in defeating Birgitta Undstrom of Finland 6-1, 6-1.

Bob Lutz of Los Angeles and Clark Graebner of New York advanced to the third round. Lutz had to scramble to defeat Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 2-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, 7-5. Graebner was leading John Brown 6-2, 3-0 when the Australian retired with a pulled muscle.

Americans Earl Buchholz, Tom Edlefsen and Stan Smith all won first round matches Wednesday.

Australians Tony Roche, second seeded, and Ken Rosewall, John Newcombe and Fred Stolle, all seeded among the top 15 contenders, won second round matches. South Africa's Cliff Drysdale also advanced to the third round.

Ashe Scores
Ashe, who said he had not been able to find any rhythm and was "off" on his serves, was down 3-6, 4-6 to South Africa's Terry Ryan before he found his service and game to win the next three sets, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Laver lost the first two sets to the scrambling Premjit Lal of India but, with the third set at 3-3, won 15 straight games and ran out the match 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-0.

But the tournament belongs, so far, to Gonzalez and Pasarell. The two men had begun playing about 6 p.m. Tuesday and for nearly two hours played sensational tennis before Pasarell finally broke Gonzalez' service in the 46th game.

Gonzalez, asked the umpire to halt the contest because of darkness. The fiery Californian did not attempt to hide his anger when the match was forced to continue and part of Tuesday's crowd booed him.

But when the two took the court Wednesday there was wild applause. At each shot, the tension built and the center court fans applauded each stroke.

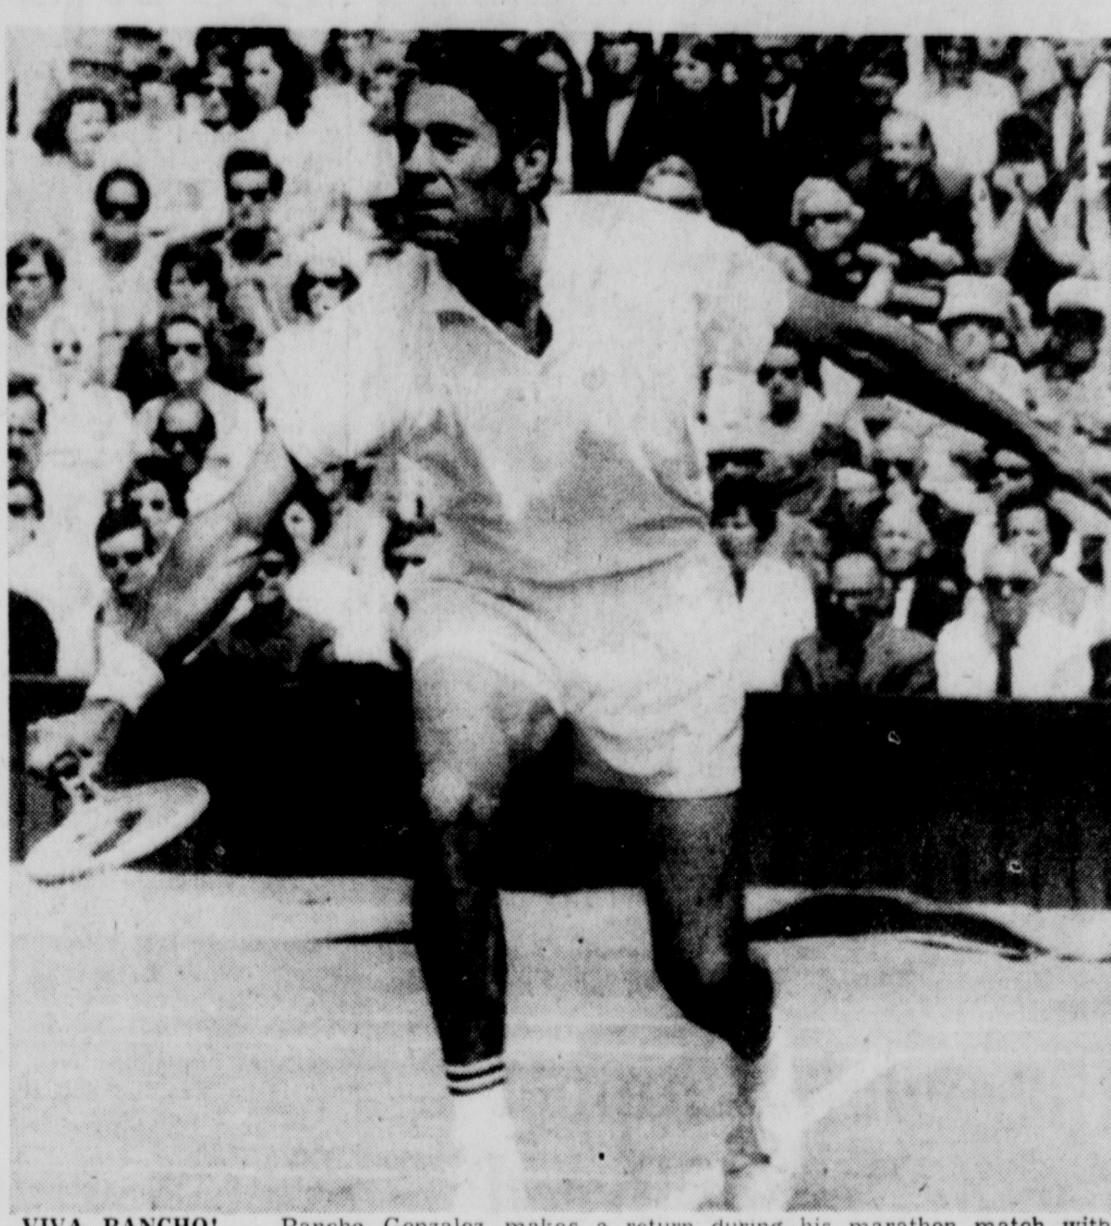

In the 20th game of the fifth set, Gonzalez forced Pasarell to drive one shot into the net, forced him to hit a high lob which Pasarell slammed into the crowd, and spun a passing shot by Pasarell on the line. The score was 40-love—three match points to Gonzalez. He needed only one. Pasarell hoisting a lob over the baseline. The match took five hours and 25 minutes over the two days.

The Gonzalez legend grew taller than the grandstand shadows and the 15,000 center court fans cheered "Bravo, Bravo" and cheered long after he had left the court, exhausted.

Ralston to Play

Today's action will see 15th seeded American Dennis Ralston play his second round match along with Cliff Richey, the San Angelo, Texas, star who defeated 14th seeded Bob Hewitt of South Africa on Tuesday.

Both the men's and women's second round will be completed by nightfall—weather permitting.

VIVA PANCHO! — Pancho Gonzalez makes a return during his marathon match with Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico in the Wimbledon Championships yesterday. Gonzalez trailed 22-24, 1-6, when darkness curtailed the match on Tuesday, but bounced back to win the next day, 16-14, 6-3, 11-9. The match set a Wimbledon record for most games played in a match, 112. (UPI CABLEPHOTO).

Arnold Palmer Sets Mark At Cleveland Course

CLEVELAND (AP) — "Well," Arnold Palmer said, "I can't say I'm satisfied. You're never satisfied unless you're winning. But maybe, just maybe, I'm on the way to being satisfied. Maybe so, maybe."

The muscular man with the putty face made the comments after shooting a six-under-par 64 in the amateur event preceding today's first round in the $110, Cleveland Open Golf Tournament on the 6,661-yard Aurora Country Club course.

The 39-year-old idol of the galleries needs a victory perhaps more than ever before. It is not that he needs the money. He's the game's first millionaire. He's made more out of it than any other person. But he needs a victory—in the worst way.

For the first time since 1955 he does not hold a title. His last one went by the boards last week in the Kemper Open at Charlotte, N.C., where he was the defending champion. Now it's been more than a year since he won and his defeat last week marked the first time since he won the Canadian Open in 1955 that he didn't hold a championship somewhere.

"I've been working on my game quite a lot," he said. "My father and I worked over some things before the National Open in Houston two weeks ago. It helped. I played better, but not good enough."

"Then last week at Charlotte, I played pretty well, but I didn't putt at all for the first three rounds. A friend of mine there, Dick Tiddy, helped me a little on my putting. "The last round I started getting some putts to drop. But I still had 30 putts. That's not good."

He closed with a final 66, six under par, in the Kemper but it wasn't enough and he finished in a tie for fifth behind winner Dale Douglass.

"I'm driving the ball well," he said. "I think I led the Kemper in greens hit in regulation, and I missed only two fairways today. It's been the putting. But that seems to be improving."

"You have to be encouraged after a 66 and 64."

The 64 was even more remarkable because the four-time Masters champ took a double bogey 6 on his first hole. He pushed his tee shot into the woods at the right, chipped back to the fairway then three-putted from 25 feet.

He missed a two-footer on his second putt, tapped in, turned his back to the gallery and muttered, "that's not it. That's not it at all."

He rimmed the cup on a 15-foot birdie putt on the second and said, "Well, at least I hit it."

He hit the back of the cup with an 18-foot bird on the third hole, retrieved the ball and said, "That's a little more like it."

He got another from 23 feet on the next hole and was off and running, finishing with eight birdies. "It's better," he said. "But I'm not satisfied. I won't be satisfied until I'm winning."

Aaron Stars, Phils Win

Hank Aaron let National League pitchers in on a little secret Wednesday night. The only trouble is they've known it for the past 16 years.

"I'm not a patty-pat hitter," Aaron said after his 529th lifetime homer had led Atlanta and Phil Niekro to a 5-3 victory over Los Angeles and moved the Braves a half-game in front of the Dodgers in the N.L.'s Western Division.

"I always go up there swinging," the 35-year-old slugger said. "I went up there looking for a home run."

Aaron's homer came off starter Claude Osteen and it was his 19th of the season. Aaron is now five behind Jimmy Foxx who holds the No. 4 spot on the all-time home run list.

In other National League games Philadelphia defeated New York 6-5 in 10 innings, St. Louis swept Montreal 8-1 and 8-3, Cincinnati beat San Diego 4-0, Chicago topped Pittsburgh 5-2 and Houston edged San Francisco 3-2.

McCarver Stars

Tim McCarver, who went 6-for-7 for the double header, hit a two-run homer in a five-run fourth inning in the first game and scored the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning of the nightcap as the Cardinals swept Montreal.

Bob Gibson posted his 10th victory in the opener and Jim Grant went the route for the second game victory for St. Louis.

The Expos pulled off the second triple play of the major league season and the first in their history in the second inning of the second game.

Watkins Scores

Dave Watkins, who tied the game in the eighth inning with his first major league homer, tripled and scored the winning run on Johnny Briggs' single in the 10th as the Phillies rallied to beat the Mets.

Al Weis and Cleon Jones drove in two runs apiece for New York.

Braves Host Ions Friday

BY MORT LAFFIN KINGSTON Barring further interference from the weather, the Kingston Braves will host the Wappingers Falls Ions Friday night at an 8 o'clock game in the Hi-Hudson Rookie League. Rain has already washed three games off the first-half slate and bad weather over the weekend could really throw a monkey-wrench in the works as the local club hosts Cornwall Saturday and is trying to reschedule one of the original washouts for Sunday. Manager Paul Giannuzzi had stated on Wednesday that he would like to pitch Ray Zappone, the newest fireballer to appear in a Braves' uniform, against the Wappingers entry, but would not make any commitment as to the assignment by press time today. "Zappone was scheduled to go against Poughkeepsie last Tuesday," said the Braves' mentor, "but the rain changed all that. I'd like to let him go against Wappingers, to keep him sharp, but if we do have a Sunday tilt, it will change the assignment, if that team is tougher," he stated. Giannuzzi continued that he thought Charlie Moore might also be ready for a Sunday assignment, but pointed out that the rain-breaks in the schedule made it hard to keep all the pitchers on the well-rested staff in working condition.

Soap Box Derby Set Here July 12

KINGSTON out the United States and over 23, at the special Derby Downs race course. A total of $30,000 in college scholarships will be presented to the top nine finishers by Chevrolet, along with a number of trophies and awards. Since the Soap Box Derby's inception, the Chevrolet division of General Motors has presented winners in all categories with a total of $386,500 in college scholarships and $825,000 in U.S. bonds for a grand total of $1,211,500. Locally the qualifying race is co-sponsored by Ray Chevrolet and Kingston Jaycees. Lund, whose department directs Chevrolet's youth program, said that the Derby has more boys registered throughout the United States this year than ever before. A total of 137 boys have registered for the Kingston competition. About seven or eight of the boys have completed their home made cars for the July 12 event. Open to boys 11 through 15 years of age, the Derby enables youngsters to build and race gravity-propelled coasting cars of their own design, following specified rules. Along with Chevrolet dealers, the Derby's wide range of sponsors includes 130 Jaycee chapters, 103 newspapers, 41 radio stations, 31 television stations and 30 Optimist Clubs.

Willie Mays Apologies

HOUSTON (UPI)—San Francisco Giant manager Clyde King said Wednesday night Willie Mays had apologized to him for an argument that took place during Tuesday night's Giant-Houston Astro game, and said the incident has been forgotten. "Willie called me and said he wanted to talk to me today," King said shortly before Wednesday night's game with the Astros. "He apologized and said he was sorry for what he did and what he said. I told him that if he was big enough to apologize, I was big enough to accept his apology." It was the first time King admitted that he and Mays had argued during Tuesday night's contest. Mays could be seen shouting at King during the first inning of the Tuesday night contest, but after the game King said he had not heard anything Mays said. The two men stood very close to each other during the argument, and a coach and two other players had to step between King and Mays at the height of the argument. Mays did not comment on the incident before Wednesday night's game. The argument apparently started over whether Mays should or should not play in Tuesday night's game. Mays' name was removed from the starting lineup at the last minute Tuesday night, but later got in the contest when outfielder Jim Ray Hart injured his shoulder. "Hereafter, I will check with Mays daily," said King. "Once again I made it clear to Willie that I won't push him when he feels tired and unable to play." Mays carried out the starting lineup card in Wednesday night's game, and with his appearance in the contest he surpassed Babe Ruth in the number of games played by a major leaguer. Mays has now been in 2,504 games, placing him in the 10th spot in that category. Mays also got a hit in the first inning of Wednesday night's game, pushing him past Mel Ott into 17th place in the all-time hits category. The single was hit No. 2,876 for Mays. King said he was "happy the incident was resolved peacefully," and said the conversation would "bring us closer together for a drive to the top."

Smith, Zaccheo Tie in Trapshoot

KINGSTON Harry Smith and Herb Zaccheo shot to a tie in the Lake Katrine trapshoot Wednesday night with 960 scores. Zaccheo had a straight of 25.

Other qualifiers were: Guy Goldsmith .938, Grover Ellsworth .920-25, Bob Schmiedake .910-25, Bill Costello .904, Nick Mauro .888, Bob Carlson .870, Bill Kilquist .867 and Chuck Bouton Sr. .800.

A.T.A. will hold a meet at the New Paltz Rod and Gun Club this Sunday with practice starting at 10 a.m. and competition starts at 11 a.m.

Namath Set For Rozelle

NEW YORK (UPI)—The long-awaited meeting between pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle and retired New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath will be held today.

Namath quit the Jets June 6 after Rozelle's ultimatum that Namath sell his interest in a New York City nightclub or be suspended. The two men have not spoken to each other, either in person or by phone, since then.

THE RACER — Allen Hornum, Wayside Drive has put the finishing touches on his racer, the Howard Johnson Special and is preparing to test-drive his car. Allen is one of eight boys who have finished their cars for the JayCees' Soap Box Derby on July 12-13, according to JayCee Racing Inspectors. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Allen Wants Trade, Through With Phils

NEW YORK (UPI)—Richie Allen remained indefinitely suspended today with Manager Bob Skinner insisting that the $75,000-a-year slugger will be reinstated with the Philadelphia Phillies "under my ground rules." Skinner's ultimatum came after Allen declared Wednesday that he is "through with the Phillies until they trade me." "I tried to cooperate with him and we had a good thing going," said Skinner, who suspended Allen when the slugger failed to show up for Tuesday night's doubleheader with the New York Mets. "I thought he was in a good frame of mind. But he's not coming back unless he comes back under my ground rules."

He has got to get over this hangup of his," Skinner continued. "I've got to worry about the rest of my ball club."

Namath Night Is Success At Monticello Race Track

BROADWAY JOE — "Broadway Joe" Namath (L) signs autographs for young fans at Monticello Raceway, yesterday, where he was helping to raise money for a seminary. Namath is scheduled to meet with pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle today but doesn't believe any agreement will be reached which will cause him to change his mind about retiring. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Broadway Joe Will Sell Out at $750,000

Joe Namath is willing to sell bachelors III to get back into pro football. However, there was a catch. He will sell, he said, if he can get his price. His price is "around $750,000."

"I want to get this mess cleared up and get back to playing football," he said. "I'll sell, if that's what I have to do. But I have to get my price."

When a reporter asked what his price was, he said, "Oh, I don't know, maybe $750,000."

He also slammed back at the Luce magazines for the recent linkings with underworld figures and the Mafia.

"I don't understand what they want with me...why are they after me? I know I had some trouble with sports illustrated a couple of years ago. But all this — this stuff they've printed is a pack of dirty lies. There just isn't any truth in them. It's ridiculous."

Another reporter asked what all the recent publicity has done to bachelors III.

Namath shrugged, looked around, and said, "I don't know that it's done anything — except maybe to improve it. I had a hard time getting in myself yesterday."

Namath appeared at the raceway last night to aid in the raising of money for St. Albert's Junior Seminary, Middletown.

He was delayed almost two hours in his arrival as a result of his plane being grounded. The only alternative was to drive and when he arrived after the trip, he looked as though he had spent most of that time in his night club.

But he recovered quickly enough for the signing of autographs, presentation of the trophy to the winner of the Namath Pace, and for the press conference.

He left immediately afterwards for New York City.

Namath will meet with Rozelle Thursday in what he expects to be a series of meetings. He said he didn't expect anything to be settled in one single get-together.

"I'll come to any reasonable agreement," he said.

The racing program read "this is Joe Namath Night," and — despite a few inconveniences — that's just what Joe Willie Namath had for himself last night at Monticello Raceway.

Crowds — Whether they're at a super bowl game or at a race track, are Namath's "thing." Anyone who's ever seen him react when people are around him can never doubt that the Jet's super star will do everything within his power to return to pro football, where the crowds are the biggest.

After an automobile trip up from New York City — following the grounding of his plane as a result of the weather — he emerged looking like a shaggy bear who'd just come out of hibernation. That is, until he saw the people, heard the cries of excited kids and blinker away at the flashing stars of press cameras. Suddenly, he came alive. The hesitant smile became steady and the weariness slipped away.

It took him almost an hour before he made it to the box seat reserved for him. That time was filled with signing autographs, shaking hands, exchanging quips, answering questions, giving away footballs and, most all, paying homage to probably the only ones who have never believed the bad things written about him — the kids.

In the minds of the kids — from eight to eighteen, they were present — there is no doubt that Joe Namath will be back directing the fortunes of the Jets this coming football season. And, for those few who felt there might be some long term resolve to Namath's retirement, there is no doubt as to who is the villain — or rather, villains.

Pete Rozelle and sports illustrated magazine.

"Joe, when you coming back?"

"I'm not sure. It depends."

"You gotta come back, Joe. What's the Jets without Joe Namath?"

"What's football without Joe Namath," another youngster asked glumly.

Namath laughed. "We'll have to see."

"I don't blame you, Joe," another boy of approximately 12 years said. "Don't let them make you do anything you don't think is right."

"Oh, I won't, believe me," said Joe.

There were things about the evening that had a bit too much of the contrived, the artificial, but there was nothing false about the affection the youngsters felt for Namath, nor the enthusiasm of his interest in them.

Dear Abby

A Plea: Don't Smoke

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

TO MY READERS: Bill Gargan, a handsome, veteran Irish actor, was larynxed by fatal cancer of the larynx by surgery. To warn and possibly save others from a similar fate, he has written a book, "WHY ME?" published by Doubleday. "Bill is a friend of mine, and has given me permission to quote from his eloquent testimony against smoking. And I thank him.

"That so many people smoke to me is incredible. That so many children smoke is sickening. By the 12th grade, fully half of our children smoke. Yet it ought not surprise us. We older people like to think we just didn't know what we were doing when we began to smoke in our youth.

"Today, we have the surgeon general's report. Yes, there is a definite link between cigarette smoking and lung cancer, a link between cigarette smoking and heart disease, between cigarette smoking and a dozen different ailments, any of which may kill someday.

"When we were young we kept saying we didn't have all the facts. Yet we called cigarettes 'coffin nails.' We knew. We laughed and curled a smoke ring in the sky.

"While talking to a group of teenagers in Anchorage, Alaska, I squirmed with guilt. I had smoked between two and three packs of cigarettes every day for 35 years. These kids, so beautiful, so sturdy and straight, God's images, all of them.

"My father and mother smoke," one child says, "Why can't I?"

"I'm sorry for your father and mother," I say.

"But I'm not worried about them. If they don't have the brains or determination to stop, I feel sorry for them. But I can't help them. It's YOU I'm worried about. If you haven't started smoking, I beg of you—DON'T. If you have started, I beg of you, STOP."

"But why," they ask. "It's in to smoke. Everyone does it. We don't want to look like oddballs."

"Would you rather look like me?" I asked gently. And SOUND like me?"

Bill Gargan's once resonant booming voice has been reduced to a croak. But his message comes thru loud and clear. Some readers letter follow:

DEAR ABBY: I want to give up smoking. Maybe I had better rephrase that. I HAVE to give up smoking.

My doctor (who is a personal friend of mine) told me yesterday that if I didn't quit smoking he did not want me to show my face in his office again. And he meant it, too.

Abby, he is a wonderful doctor and I have gone to him for nearly 15 years, and I do not want to start in with another doctor, but I am a three-pack-a-day woman, and it's not all that easy to stop. I have tried to cut down, and I have even tried to quit "cold turkey" and I put on 10 pounds in nearly as many days.

Is there a hypnotist I can go to? I admit, I haven't the willpower to quit on my own. I have heard this really works.

Bad Hand Key to Contract Set

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We don't think much of South's seven no-trump bid. His partner had shown one ace and one king but if that king turned out to be in spades instead of hearts, the chances are that a heart lead would hold South to 11 tricks.

On the other hand, most players overbid their good hands and South certainly held a good hand.

We think even less of West's double. West could be sure that South's bidding was based on

DEAR SHIRLEY: The American Cancer society has the word on this. And the word from them is "NIX."

DEAR ABBY: Mind if I get personal? Have you ever smoked? And if you have, how long ago did you quit, and why?

"NOSY" IN FORT FORTH DEAR NOSY: I have never smoked. I refrained when young to please my parents, and continue to abstain to please myself.

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY JUNE 27, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are restless. But don't make move without first checking directions. Being in too much of a hurry today is costly. A call or message contains pertinent information.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What you have been saving for surprise can now be revealed—could mean extra money. Mate, partner expresses some concern. Strive for family harmony. But don't give up dream.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be ready for opposition. Persons who previously agreed now make point of being stubborn. Your best bet is display of combined humor and confidence. A friend may be in pugnacious mood.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have made some health resolutions. Today you are put to test. You either keep them or act in foolish manner. If you are intelligent, this can be a day when real progress results.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Necessary to find outlet for basic creative urges. You want recognition so today take steps to insure it. Don't hold back. Give your all. Put finishing touches on special project.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Domestic decisions surge to forefront. You have to take action connected with spending habits of mate, partner. State views in confident, independent manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Slow pace. If in too much of a hurry you by-pass destination. One who poses as knowing much is actually confused. Hold off on signing contract, agreement. There is more to know.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may feel you must have what you want—immediately. But unless you take time you buy pig in poke. Means be patient where expenditures are concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid excess speed. Obtain hint from SCORPIO message. Argument likely if you ask for it. Means self-control is essential. Don't be slave to emotions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What might have been obscured becomes obvious. Don't play games. Be frank. Keeping secrets simply is not practical today. Be straightforward. Then you gain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friends are argumentative. Your role should be that of diplomat. Don't compound errors. Those who battle today could be allies tomorrow. Refuse to be caught in the middle.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on progress in professional area. Also good for advancement in club, organization. You have choice of moving ahead or standing back. Time to take initiative. Exclude air of confidence.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you attract people with their problems. You have a knack of aiding those in difficulty. Currently, it is essential for you to clear up past debts, obligations.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

NO STEREO: (Q.) I'd swear on a million Bibles my mother hates me! My birthday was yesterday. I was 14 years old. She didn't even give me a present, or a party, or anything.

I wanted a stereo. I didn't get one for Christmas. She promised me one for my birthday. I didn't get it. I asked her why and she said, "I don't have the money."

She had months to save and get me one, but still didn't. She treats me like dirt. What can I do to make her love me? I'm thinking of running away.

I look like my father. He and my mother are separated. Could she be taking all the hatred she has for my father out on me? She really hates me!—B. in Springfield, Mass.

(A.) My advice is to think about your mother instead of yourself. She probably has many strains, including financial ones, and your attitude isn't helping her a bit.

Think how she must feel. Then let her know you love her and understand.

If you want a stereo badly enough, maybe you can make some money doing odd jobs, such as baby-sitting after school, to help buy it. Then maybe she will be able to get it for you.

SUMMER COLORS: (Q.) I am planning a late July or early August wedding. What colors are appropriate for that time of year?—J.B. in Texas.

(A.) July and August are very warm. For warm weather pale colors are traditionally best. A wedding is traditional. So I suggest you choose the pale colors you like best.

'Wishbone' Is Dedicated

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — By now, the myth should be dispelled that every character actor is simply waiting around until he can get the lead in his own television series.

Paul Brinegar scoffs at the notion of becoming a superstar. "More and more we're finding out, particularly on television, that it's hard to top yourself week after week," said Brinegar, who is the bearded and irascible Jelly Hoskins on "Lancer" on CBS.

"I love the top character supporting role," he said. "You get as much money, the same glory and the rest you need. I only have to work about three days a week."

Brinegar is at the top of the coterie of character actors whose job is to add flavor to television and the movies. Before joining "Lancer" at mid-season, Brinegar had popped up consistently in such shows as "Bonanza," "Iron Horse," "Perry Mason," and "Daniel Boone."

Perhaps he is best known for his eight years as Wishbone on "Rawhide."

After "Rawhide" left the air, Brinegar briefly left character parts. The experience was one that reconfirmed his dedication to supporting roles.

"I shaved my beard," he said. "I thought I was going to make a million dollars as a handsome leading man. Not only that, I put on a toupee."

"I thought I was well enough known that I was just selling a new image. Well, let me tell you, I couldn't get a job. Without this beard, I couldn't have gotten this job."

Does he lose himself in the personality of the character he is playing?

"Hell, I don't lose myself in a character. I make the character fit me," he laughed.

Between takes on the 20th Century Fox lot, where filming is under way for the second season of "Lancer," he said, "In television, if you're going to have any public appeal, you can't invent a characterization."

It has to be real if the public is going to accept it.

"I make the character fit me so well there's no situation I can't handle easily," he said.

"Of course, a freelancer who goes from role to role can throw himself into a part because he doesn't have to sustain characterization," he added.

Brinegar contends that some television writing is so shallow that "you're lucky to be able to even get in and create a scene."

Asked what talents a character actor needs most, he answered, "Flexibility is a necessity. If you can only do it one way, you limit your job."

Ottinger Hits Rocky on Road

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N. Y., charging Governor Rockefeller with "improper intervention," has asked that a federal permit for the Hudson River Expressway in New York State be suspended.

Ottinger spoke Wednesday as the House subcommittee on fisheries and wildlife wound up two days of hearings on the controversial highway project.

The Westchester County Democrat urged the committee to write the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers requesting suspension of their permit allowing a four-mile stretch of landfill in the Hudson River, part of the 10.4-mile expressway from Tarrytown to Crotonville.

Ottinger said he was asking suspension of the permit "pending an investigation by the Interior Department of the consequences on fish and wildlife and to write the secretary of interior requesting an independent study on the consequences on fish and wildlife as required by law."

No Objections
Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the subcommittee, indicated he would consult with the full subcommittee before requesting the suspension. He said he has no objections to the request.

Ottinger told the subcommittee hearing testimony on the effects on Hudson River marine life that former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall's "action in approving the expressway was clearly arbitrary and capricious; it must not stand."

Ottinger introduced memoranda he said shows "clearly improper intervention by the Rockefeller in the Interior Department's processes."

A Nov. 14, 1968 memo from Harry Rice, assistant director for federal programs and statistics of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), showed that Udall had abandoned his opposition to the project.

The memo written for BOR records said Rice was informed

Wedge in Red Encirclement

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops behind tanks and armored personnel carriers have killed 214 Communist troops and opened a second road into the besieged Green Beret camp at Ben Het.

Allied headquarters made the announcement today, listing 17 government soldiers dead and 94 wounded in four days of heavy fighting in driving another wedge in the North Vietnamese encirclement.

The road they opened runs from the airfield at Dak Mot, four miles east of Ben Het, into the Special Forces camp itself. Highway 512 from Dak To eight miles away was used by convoys reaching the camp Monday and Tuesday.

Initial reports said American and South Vietnamese dive bombers, artillery salvos and helicopter gunships helped the government troops break the Communist resistance to their spearhead into Ben Het.

B52s came in during the night with 180 tons of bombs they dumped on the North Vietnamese troops who have now withstood more than 80 such raids in their 51-day siege.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press said battle deaths in Vietnam dropped last week with a lessening in major ground fighting, the allied commands reported today.

U.S. headquarters said 247 Americans were killed in action in the seven-day period ending at midnight Saturday—a decrease of 88 deaths from 335 the previous week.

American wounded also dropped from 1,695 to 1,686. Of these, headquarters said, 797 were hospitalized.

South Vietnamese headquarters said its forces lost 474 men killed last week, down from 516 the previous week. But the 1,496 government soldiers wounded in action last week was an increase over 1,424 wounded a week earlier.

The two commands said 3,988 enemy were reported killed last week. They updated the previous week's toll from 4,360 to 4,504.

The casualties raised to 36,625 the number of Americans killed in action in Vietnam since Jan. 1, 1961. Another 234,889 Americans have been wounded and 1,337 are listed as missing, captured or interned.

The number of enemy reported killed since 1961 now stands at 520,219.

By unofficial count, 13,674 Americans have been killed since May 13, 1968, when preliminary peace talks began in Paris. Of these, 6,568 have died since Dec. 7, when South Vietnam agreed to join the talks.

The Infiltration Cutback --- Weather, Manpower Causes?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State and Defense departments are trying to determine what consequences a reported sharp cutback in the infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into South Vietnam might have on the course of the war.

The infiltration rate declined several weeks ago, according to intelligence reports, and has been running at a relatively low level since.

Some authorities believe bad weather along the jungle trails in North Vietnam and Laos probably caused the decline. Others think a heavy drain on North Vietnam's draft-age manpower in past years may be responsible.

If the cutback is intended by Hanoi as a political move toward de-escalating the war, officials indicate they have no evidence so far that this is happening.

In fact, U.S. officials say privately they have no evidence of any intention by North Vietnam to scale down the war and they are still predicting another enemy offensive in South Vietnam later this summer.

President Nixon announced June 8 he had ordered withdrawal of 25,000 American troops from South Vietnam by the end of August. At his news conference last Thursday he said there had been no Hanoi response to requests for North Vietnam to reciprocate.

North Vietnamese infiltration was estimated by U.S. authorities earlier this year to be running in excess of 10,000 men a month—a rate judged here to be necessary to replace casualties and keep North Vietnamese forces in the South at a level of about 100,000 men.

Enemy losses have been estimated at upward of 10,000 a month.

To compensate for a decline in replacements caused by a substantially lower infiltration rate over a long period of time, the enemy military command would have to reduce the level of combat and thus cut casualties. But officials say they have no indication this is happening.

Judy Garland—Final Act

NEW YORK (UPI) — Judy Garland came home today for the final act in a tormented life.

Six fans were on hand to pay silent tribute to their idol as the casket bearing Miss Garland's body was taken into Madison Avenue funeral home in the early morning hours after being flown from London.

Her body, in a glass covered casket, was to be on view today and Friday morning before funeral services Friday afternoon. She died Sunday in London of an accidental self-administered overdose of barbiturates.

Mrs. Gertrude Harris, 47 the same age as Miss Garland, stood with five other persons at the funeral home as the casket, covered with a brown mat, was lifted from the hearse and taken inside.

She and her companions, who included a young boy, said they would wait for the 11 a.m. opening of the funeral home so they could be the first to file past the coffin.

Set Up Barricades
Police already had set up barricades they said would handle as many of Judy's fans as turned out.

Miss Garland's fifth husband, Mickey Deans, 35, accompanied her body back to the United States from London. They had been married only three months.

There were no fans at the airport when the plane arrived early today. The coffin was unloaded and placed on the hearse that took it to the funeral home. Actress Liza Minelli, one of Miss Garland's three children, was there but said she did not want to discuss her mother's death.

From 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. the body of the star of "The Wizard of Oz" and "A Star is Born" will be on view in the glass-faced coffin, surrounded by the flowers of friends and admirers. A spokesman for the funeral home said that anybody in line at closing time "will not be turned away."

Her body also will be on view Friday morning until two hours before the 1 p.m. funeral services, which will be a private affair with fewer than 350 invited guests. Actor James Mason, who played the role of her husband in "A Star is Born" in 1954 and became a life-long friend, will deliver the eulogy.

Reports Cause Of Death
Coroner Gavin Thurston, in reporting the cause of death in London said the star had such a high level of barbiturates already in her bloodstream that her body could tolerate no more. Miss Garland had been taking pills almost all her life and blamed it on a sleeping pill-pup pill routine that started during the filming of "The Wizard of Oz."

In Hollywood, it was reported Miss Garland requested in her will that only her former make-up man, Gene Hibbs, be permitted to perform the service in death. But the request must go unfulfilled.

Liza Minelli, daughter of the late singer, made a tearful call to Hibbs Tuesday night and told him her mother had stipulated that her body was to be touched only by him.

"I made Judy up for all her television shows," Hibbs said Wednesday. "I would like to fly back to New York to put her final makeup on her, but that is impossible."

Hibbs works for the television series "Green Acres" and a spokesman for the company said it would cost more than $30,000 in lost time if Hibbs flew to New York. The series is in its final week of production.

Eva Gabor, star of "Green Acres," announced she would not work unless Hibbs were permitted to fly to New York. And Producer Otto Preminger, a friend of Miss Garland, called from New York but was unable to convince the series producer to release Hibbs from his contract.
